FAST ONLINE TRACK FINDING FOR THE MUON TRIGGER IN THE UA1 EXPERIMENT

K. Eggert[1], Th. Ehlert[1], Cl. Engster[2], P. Erhard[1], H. Faissner[1], K.L. Giboni[1],
R. Haidan[2], T. Hansl-Kozanecka[1], L.O. Hertzberger[3], D. Hoffmann[1], D.J. Holthuizen[3],
L. van Koningsveld[2], H. Lehmann[1], R. Leuchs[1], Y. Muraki[2], E. Radermacher[2],
H. Reithler[1], E. Tscheslog[1], H. Verweij[2]

     1.   III Physikalisches Institut, RWTH Aachen

     2.   CERN, Geneva, Switzerland

     3.   NIKHEF, Amsterdam

A microprocessor system will be used to trigger on high energetic muons in the UA1 experiment. The system consists of 7 microprocessors MC 68000. Six of them work in parallel for a first online track finding and one as supervisor to take the final trigger decision . To reduce the input rate for the microprocessors a very fast prefiltering is done by a specially constructed hardware trigger.

(Paper not received)