

Martina OJEDA

Martina is from Canada. She is currently studying Physics at the McGill University.

During her summer at CERN Martina has been working in the ATLAS Experiment. The final goal of her project has been to study the separation power between signal ($t\bar{t}H$) and background, and to build a discriminant from the variables with the highest separation power using MVA techniques

After her internship at CERN Martina is going back to McGill to finish her undergraduate studies.