

Acknowledgments

The adventure of this book is one of the most precious treasures of my life. I wish to express my gratitude to many people who gave me advice, encouragement, and support.

I offer my sincere gratitude to several scholars for their great help through the long journey of my book writing. Among them, I would single out Michael Herzfeld, Nelson Graburn, Margaret Swain, and Tim Oakes. They supplied much-needed advice, creative comments and warm encouragement towards my research.

The book is based on the research I conducted during my PhD. I am deeply grateful to my advisors, William S. Sax and Christiane Brosius. They provided invaluable guidance and support shaping my intellectual mind during the early stage of my academic career. I am always grateful for the premium level of training that I received from the Department of Ethnology and the Cluster of Asia and Europe in a Global Context at Heidelberg University. I wish to thank Niels Gutschow, Paul Fletcher, Lion Koenig, Christoph Bergmann, Mareike Ohlberg, and Katharina Weiler. Their help and advice on my research are much appreciated.

I thank the Australian National University for providing me financial support to facilitate the writing and revision of my book. I specially thank Laurajane Smith for her continuous support and mentoring. I would also like to thank my colleagues from the Heritage and Museum Studies Center, especially, Paul Pickering, Maya Havilland, Kate Bowan, Ken Taylor, Alexandra Dellios, and Adele Chynoweth. My colleagues at the Australian Centre on China in the World, especially Benjamin Penny, Luigi Tomba, Geremie Barme, Linda Jaivin, Gloria Davies, and Carolyn Cartier gave me warm support and encouragement. I am grateful for the comments and criticism from my peers including Ivan Franceschini, Paul Farrelly, Elisa Nesossi, Jinghong Zhang, Hsuan-Ying Huang, Ying Qian, William Sima, and Craig Smith. I am also grateful to Nicholas Tapp, Philip Taylor, Andrew Kipnis, Jonathan Unger, Anita Chan, Ben Hillman, Mark Strange, Tom Cliff, and Shuge Wei.

My special gratitude goes to Christina Maags who offered me valuable comments and constant help and support during my book preparation and revision. Besides them, I deeply appreciate the kind advice from Dean MacCannell, Mike Rowlands, Stephen Feuchtwang, Ning Wang, Li Zhang, Jiuxia Sun, Zhaorong Peng, William Nitzky, Steven Sangren, Christoph

Brumann, and Fang Lu. My work benefited from the incisive suggestions, comments, and criticism of all of them.

Fieldwork in Lijiang was the most exciting but challenging experience of my academic life. I have benefited from my informants who kindly agreed to be interviewed and share their knowledge and opinions with me. I am much grateful to their cooperation. This research would not have been completed successfully without their support. I would especially thank Fuquan Yang, Liming He, Shiyong He, Yongchang He, and Wen Ding for their kind help.

Several of these chapters have been presented in preliminary form at various places, and I am grateful to the hosts for this opportunity. These include the University of California at Berkeley and Davis, Sun Yat-sen University, University of Waseda, University of Colorado Boulder, and Max-Planck Institute for Social Anthropology at Halle. Some chapters include segments of previously published articles. They include 'Performing heritage: Rethinking authenticity in global tourism', Annals of Tourism Research, vol. 39, no. 3, 1495-1513; and 'Heritage making of Lijiang: Governance, reconstruction and local Naxi life' in World Heritage on the Ground, Ethnographic Perspectives (Berghahn 2016). I am grateful to the two reviewers of my manuscript for their constructive and valuable comments. My special thanks go to my editors for their proficiency in producing this book, including Adèle Esposito, the Series Editor, Mary Lynn van Dijk and Paul van der Velde from IIAS, and Saskia Gieling and Jaap Wagenaar from Amsterdam University Press. I learned a great deal from each of them, and many of their comments helped shape the way this book turned out.

Last but not least, I would like to take this chance to thank my family for their love and support over the years: to my parents for lifelong support and guidance, and to my wife Anna Li for her understanding and companionship. She is my lover, my soul mate, and my best friend. As a researcher who is on her intellectual journey, she helped me clarify my thoughts, and gave me valuable suggestions on my research. I would also like to thank our little daughter Grace, who reminds me of the happiness and goodness of the world and inspires me to be the best version of myself. This book is decided to them.
