Piadine Sandwiches

The word piadine (pyah-DEE-nah) is derived from piadena, which is a wide bowl or flat vase. Piadine are thin, pliable, Italian flatbreads grilled on a testo (a black cast-iron pan). Made popular in Romagna, the piadine is versatile and can be served as a sandwich, a calzone or another specialty. It is typically stuffed with meats, cheeses, vegetables, or salads. The piadine is commonly folded in half and eaten like a taco.

Barbecue Chicken

Our homemade flatbread basted with Kinder's Barbecue sauce, covered with Romaine lettuce and tossed in ranch dressing. We finish this creation with grilled chicken, bacon, red onions, green chiles, melted mozzarella cheese, and a splash of ranch dressing.
