

Health, education and employment in India:

a land of opulence, tragedy and hope

Rajan Gupta is a theoretical physicist at Los Alamos National Laboratory. He has developed lectures on HIV/AIDS awareness and prevention aimed at students, health workers, industrialists, parents, and industrial workers in India. The programme now includes a number of societal issues like environment, role of women in India, reproductive health, STDs and HIV/AIDS, addictions, good governance, and corruption.
