

TABLE OF CONTENTS

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS	7
INTRODUCTION
1. The Phenomenon of Colorism	9
2. On the History of Colorism in the African American Population	16
I. COLORISM IN NINETEENTH-CENTURY LITERATURE
I.1 The Role of Skin Color in the First Antislavery Novel	39
I.2 The Color Scheme in Uncle Tom's Cabin	48
I.3 Uncle Tom's Heirs	61
I.4 Excursus: The "Tragic Mulatta" and Her Story	75
I.5 Charles Chesnutt and the Narrative of Color Prejudices	79
II. NEW APPROACHES TO COLORISM IN THE HARLEM RENAISSANCE
II.1 Colorism in the Literature of the Harlem Renaissance	103
II.2 A Celebration of Colors	106
II.3 Revising the Tragic Mulatta: Nella Larsen's Quicksand	119
II.4 Another Variation on the Tragic Mulatta: Zora Neale Hurston's Their Eyes Were Watching God	136

III. MOVING THE DARK GIRL INTO THE CENTER
III.1 Beyond the Pale: Wallace Thurman's The Blacker the Berry	157
III.2 Black Heroine of Ordinary Life: Gwendolyn Brooks' Maud Martha	171
III.3 Destruction and Deconstruction: White Beauty Standards in Toni Morrison's The Bluest Eye	185
IV. THE BEAUTY OF BLACKNESS
IV.1 Literature and the Beauty of Blackness.....	205
IV.2 When Black Was Beautiful: John Oliver Killens' The Cotillion; or, One Good Bull is Half the Herd	212
IV.3 Loving the Black Self: Alice Walker's The Color Purple	224
V. THE UNLEARNING OF COLORISM
V.1 Union of Dark and Light in Dorothy West's The Wedding	233
V.2 Narratives of Reversed Colorism in Gloria Naylor's Linden Hills and Mama Day and Toni Morrison's Paradise	238
CONCLUSION.....	253
BIBLIOGRAPHY.....	259