

The Province of the Book

Scholars, Scribes, and Scribblers
in Colonial Tamilnadu

A.R. VENKATACHALAPATHY

permanent black

Contents

Preface and Acknowledgements	ix
Introduction: The Birth of the Tamil Book	1
1 The Age of Patronage	20
Poets, Patrons, and Forms of Patronage	20
Changing Forms of Patronage: The Subscription System	30
The Decline of Patronage	34
2 From Patronage to the Public	50
Subramania Bharati	51
M.V. Ramanujachari and the Tamil Mahabharatam	64
The Dilemmas of Transition	72
3 Towards the Market: Domesticating the Novel	76
The Scourge of the Novel	76
The Critique of Popular Fiction	82
Women and Popular Fiction	88
Responding to Criticism	92
Towards Respectability	94
4 Authors, Publishers, Printers	99
Authors	99
Publishers	111
Printers	121
5 Songsters of the Crossroads	130
Contempt for Popular Literature	131
Gujili : From Place Name to Metaphor	134
Ballads and Chapbooks	139

Authors and Publishers	149
The Elite and the Popular: Some Aspects of Interaction	156
Silencing the Popular Press	166
6 Policing the Book	169
The Acts and Administration	169
Annual Reports and Quarterly Catalogues	174
Mechanisms of Control	177
State Patronage	184
Copyright	184
Policing the Book	187
The State and Political Literature	196
7 Readers, Reading Practices, Modes of Reading	208
Readers and their Social Composition	208
The Traditional Mode of Reading	213
The Silent Mode of Reading	225
Modes of Reading and the Incomplete Hegemony of the Middle Class	235
Epilogue: Exaggerated Obituaries?	243
Appendices	254
1 Book Production in Colonial Tamilnadu, 1556–1982	254
2 Printing Costs, 1865–1925	259
3 Cashbook of T.M. Press, 1916–1917	261
Glossary	262
Select Bibliography	264
Index	283