

A Nation Divided by History and Memory

Hungary in the Twentieth Century and Beyond

Gábor Gyáni

Contents

Preface	vi
Acknowledgements	xi
Introduction: Two kinds of history	1
PART I
The past as experience and memory	17
1 The experience and remembrance of World War I	19
2 Image and reality of a divided country	39
3 Collective memory as a political instrument	56
4 Jewish experience and the memory of the Holocaust	67
5 Memory and discourse on the 1956 revolution	88
PART II
History as constructed by historians	99
6 Culture, nationalism and history	101
7 Cultic and ironic visions of Hungary	115
8 Revolution, uprising, civil war	137
9 Conclusion	155
Bibliography	160
Index	179