Contents

Preface xi
I. Burnouf as Father of Modern Buddhology 1
I.1. Correspondence and Documents 1
I.2. A Catalogue of Eugène Burnouf's Library Collection 5
II. Louis-Mathieu Langlès and Alexander Hamilton 7
II.1. A Sales Catalogue of the Langlès Library Collection
II.2. Hamilton in Paris — Langlès as Librarian 9
III. Paris - A Capital City of Sanskrit Learning
III.1. Sanskrit and French Scholarship
III.2. Bopp from Paris to London, Göttingen and Berlin 15
III.3. Franz Bopp in Berlin and the Burnoufs in Paris
III.4. Max Müller with Eugène Burnouf in Paris 22
IV. Oriental Studies in France and Germany 26
IV.1. Scholars in the Asiatic Societies of the West 26
IV.2. Scholars in German Centres of Oriental Studies 32
IV.3. Trivia Incidental to Indian and Buddhist Studies in Göttingen 34
V. Creation of Chairs of Indology and Sinology in Paris 38
V.1. Collège de France 38
V.2. Second Chairholders of Indology and Sinology 40
V.3. Burnouf père et fils – and Émile Burnouf 44
VI. Arrivals of New Source Materials 49
VI.1. Hodgson in Kathmandu and Burnouf in Paris 49
VI.2. Materials from China, Tibet and Mongolia 54
VI.3. Société Asiatique and Buddhist Sanskrit Materials 57
VII. The Lotus Sutra
VII.1. Arrivals of the Lotus Sutra Manuscripts in Paris 61
VII.2. Burnouf's Translation of the Lotus Sutra 62
VII.3. Further from Burnouf to Hodgson on the Lotus Sutra 67
VII.4. Publications of the Lotus Sutra after Burnouf's Premature Death
VIII. Afterword 77

Reference 79

Introductory Notes on this Bibliography 79

Index to Personal Names Cited in the Text with Dates of Births and Deaths .. 189