

Contents

List of figures	vii
List of table	ix
Notes on contributors	x
Introduction	1
EMILY KELLEY AND ELIZABETH RICHARDS RIVENBARK
The Abject Body	9
1 Blood, sweat, tears, and milk: “Fluid” veneration, sensory contact, and corporeal presence in medieval devotional art	11
VIBEKE OLSON
2 “No living presence”: Human absence in the early work of Jasper Johns and Robert Rauschenberg	32
REBEKAH SCOGGINS
The Virtual Body	49
3 Maria Ecclesia: The Aachen Marienschrein as an alternate body for the Virgin Mary	51
LISA VICTORIA CIRESI
4 Drawn to scale: The medieval monastic’s virtual pilgrimage through sacred measurement	73
NATALIE M. MANDZIUK
5 Cloth as a sign of the absent body in American sculpture from the 1960s	93
ELIZABETH RICHARDS RIVENBARK

The Alternate Body	109
6 Imagining the sorrows of death and pains of hell in the Hours of Catherine of Cleves JENNIFER M. FELTMAN	111
7 The absent body as divine reflection in Parmigianino's Self-Portrait in a Convex Mirror MARGARET A. MORSE	133
8 A clear preoccupation with death: The absent body in Mark Rothko's mature style MICHAEL R. SMITH, JR.	153
Bibliography	171
Index	191