Table of contents

Acknowledgements vii

Part I. Introduction

CHAPTER 1
Category change from a constructional perspective: Introduction 3
Kristel Van Goethem, Muriel Norde, Evie Coussé and Gudrun Vanderbauwhede

Part II. Category genesis: The creation of new categories

CHAPTER 2
Category genesis in Chitimacha: A constructional approach 15
Daniel W. Hieber

CHAPTER 3
Derivation without category change: A network-based analysis of diminutive prefixoids in Dutch 47
Muriel Norde and Caroline Morris

Part III. Category change in syntactic constructions

CHAPTER 4
Grammaticalization, host-class expansion and category change 93
Evie Coussé

CHAPTER 5
Why would anyone take long? Word classes and Construction Grammar in the history of long 119
David Denison

CHAPTER 6
Category change in the English gerund: Tangled web or fine-tuned constructional network? 149
Lauren Fonteyn and Liesbet Heyvaert

CHAPTER 7
The emergence of a new adverbial downtoner: Constructional change and constructionalization of Dutch [ver van X] and [verre van X] 'far from X' 179
Kristel Van Goethem, Gudrun Vanderbauwhede and Hendrik De Smet

Part IV. Category change in morphological constructions

CHAPTER 8
Category change in construction morphology 209
Geert Booij and Jenny Audring

CHAPTER 9
Evaluative morphology in German, Dutch and Swedish: Constructional networks and the loci of change 229
Malte Battefeld, Torsten Leuschner and Gudrun Rawoens

CHAPTER 10
Constructional change on the contentful-procedural gradient: The case of the -idz(o) construction in Griko 263
Nikos Koutsoukos

Part V. Discussion

CHAPTER 11
Change in category membership from the perspective of construction grammar: A commentary 291
Graeme Trousdale

Construction index 309

Subject index 311