Guests will find this diagram helpful in locating the approximate seating of the degree candidates. The seating roughly corresponds to the order by school in which the candidates for degrees are presented, beginning at top left with the College of Arts and Sciences. The actual sequence is shown in the Contents on the opposite page under Degrees in Course. Reference to the paragraph on page seven describing the colors of the candidates' hoods according to their fields of study may further assist guests in placing the locations of the various schools.

CLOSING REMARKS

The President

THE RED AND BLUE

(By William J. Goeckel, '96 and Harry E. Westervelt, '98)

Come all ye loyal classmen now, in hall and campus through,
Lift up your hearts and voices for the royal Red and Blue.
Fair Harvard has her crimson, old Yale
her colors too,
But for dear Pennsylvania we wear
the Red and Blue.
Hurrah! Hurrah! Pennsylvania! Hurrah for the Red and the Blue;
Hurrah! Hurrah! Hurrah! Hurrah!
Hurrah for the Red and the Blue.

RECESSIONAL

Commencement Notes

The most significant day in the American national calendar, the Fourth of July, was chosen by the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania for the Commencement exercises of 1783 so that on the seventh anniversary "of declared Independence, the wreath of Science should be conferred on the deserving."

While the bells of every church in the city pealed outside, and the harbor was decorated with the colors of friendly nations belonging to the ships in the port, graduation took place in the then College building on Fourth Street. The principals in the ceremony moved in procession from the apparatus chamber to the great hall. There the "deserving"—eleven Bachelors of Arts, four Bachelors of Medicine, eight Masters of Arts, one Doctor of Medicine (ad eundem), and two Doctors of Divinity—received the honors of the first educational institution in the United States to bear the title of University.

Another degree was conferred, but in absentia, a Doctorate of Laws awarded to His Excellency General George Washington, Esquire, Commander in Chief of the Army of the United States. This great moment in the program was preceded by student orations, several of which touched on "the democratic form of government," on patriotism and the generosity of France towards the United States (the French Minister was, happily, in the audience), and by a forensic disputation on duelling, an occasional practice of the students and a cause of grave concern to the faculty.

General Washington, who had attended the University's Commencement the year before, and would receive his diploma privately five months later, could not be present on July 4, 1783, but the audience heard the stirring words of the degree citation. In the accolade, the trustees and faculty spoke of the arduous struggle for "peace, liberty, and safety," with which the welfare of the arts and sciences was intimately concerned; they trembled at the dangers that surrounded them—they crowded to your standard for safety—and in you they have found an illustrious protector. Sensible of her obligations—and ambitious of inrolling your justly celebrated name in the catalogue of her sons, this university presents your excellency with her highest honours.

Graduates of the Class of 1883 may not realize that the Master of Arts degree of two centuries ago was not earned; it was bestowed upon graduates of three years' standing who were judged worthy and paid a fee. This ancient custom, inherited from English academic practice, was to continue for exactly a century. The Commencement of 1883, of which the ceremony today represents the centenary, witnessed, for the last time, the award of (again, exactly eight) such degrees.

The facilities of the new West Philadelphia campus could not accommodate a graduation ceremony in 1883, and, in the pattern of the time, the two exercises—the first in April for the Medical and Dental Departments, the second in June for arts, medical, legal and honorary candidates—, were held at the Academy of Music where the Germania Orchestra provided the lively and brassy sound effects then so popular.

The student body had grown, and diversified, in the intervening century. The recipients of the M.D. degree in April numbered 99, 59 of them, to be sure, Pennsylvanians, but with citizens of Brazil and the Caribbean islands of Cuba and Barbados among them. The 34 graduating dentists included a Colombian, a German, a Puerto Rican and a Norwegian. At the June ceremony, the Bachelors of Laws had the largest representation (51 degree candidates, including Messrs Ballard, Gest and Price, all to be prominently associated with the subsequent development of their School and University). With them were 45 collegians, who received the Bachelor's degree, together with 20 recipients of certificates of proficiency, two medical graduates, and three professional men who secured honorary degrees.

Among the College candidates was William Adger, the first black to receive an Arts degree from Pennsylvania, and Edward Potts Cheyney, the future historian of the University. Five women were in the academic procession, four of them taking certificates in Music; the fifth, Mrs. Carrie Burnham Kilgore, was the first woman to receive the LL.B. of the University. The struggle of Carrie Kilgore for a law degree in 1883 has been marked in 1983 by a significant anniversary exhibition in the Law School.

In 1933, University honors were awarded at the Midyear Convocation in February and at the June Commencement; then, in November, diploma exercises were held for the Hospital Training School for Nurses. At Convocation, the degrees received by the 345 candidates (150 of them graduate students) included many which had been added to the academic cornucopia during the intervening half century: the Master of Business Administration, the M.S. in Education and the same degree in Electrical Engineering, the Bachelor and Master of Architecture, the Master of Medical Science, and the doctorate in Philosophy—one of whose proud recipients was blind. R.O.T.C. commissions were awarded.

At the June, 1933 Commencement, held then, as today, in Convention Hall, Arts, Medical, and Dental seniors received diplomas, and certificates went to candidates from the Evening School of Accounts and Finance, another educational opportunity developed in the twentieth century. Fifteen hundred candidates listened to an address by Judge Horace Stern, College and Law alumnus and now an honorary degree recipient, as was, to everyone's pleasure, the Polish-born American romantic pianist, the country's favorite composer, Josef Hofmann.

Academic dress stems from the clerical robes of the Middle Ages, when the hood was worn raised for protection in drafty halls. The American code of academic dress was developed in 1895 by an intercollegiate commission and has been modified over the years, most recently in 1960.

The bachelor's gown is relatively simple and has long, pointed sleeves. Master's gowns were formerly distinguished by long, dangling sleeves with a slit at the elbow through which the arm emerged; an opening may now be made at the wrist, and both versions are in general use. The doctoral gown is a more elaborate costume marked by velvet panels down the front and around the neck as well as by three velvet bars on the bell-shaped sleeves. The mortarboard cap has been standard in the United States though soft caps are coming into use; doctors may wear a gold tassel, but all others wear black. Some institutions have in recent years authorized doctors' gowns in colors other than the customary black; holders of the Pennsylvania Ph.D. degree may now wear red and blue gowns.

The hood is lined with silk in the colors of the institution which granted the highest degree held by the wearer, and the color of the bordering velvet indicates the field of study to which the degree pertains. Pennsylvania graduates wear a hood lined in red with a blue chevron. Degrees will be conferred today in: Arts, white; Science, golden yellow; Business Administration, mustard; Education, light blue; Fine Arts, brown; Philosophy, dark blue; Medicine, green; Law, purple; Dental Medicine, lilac; Veterinary Medicine, gray; Social Work, citron.
