

Auth0 Identity Platform: Private Cloud Deployment Option

Deployable on

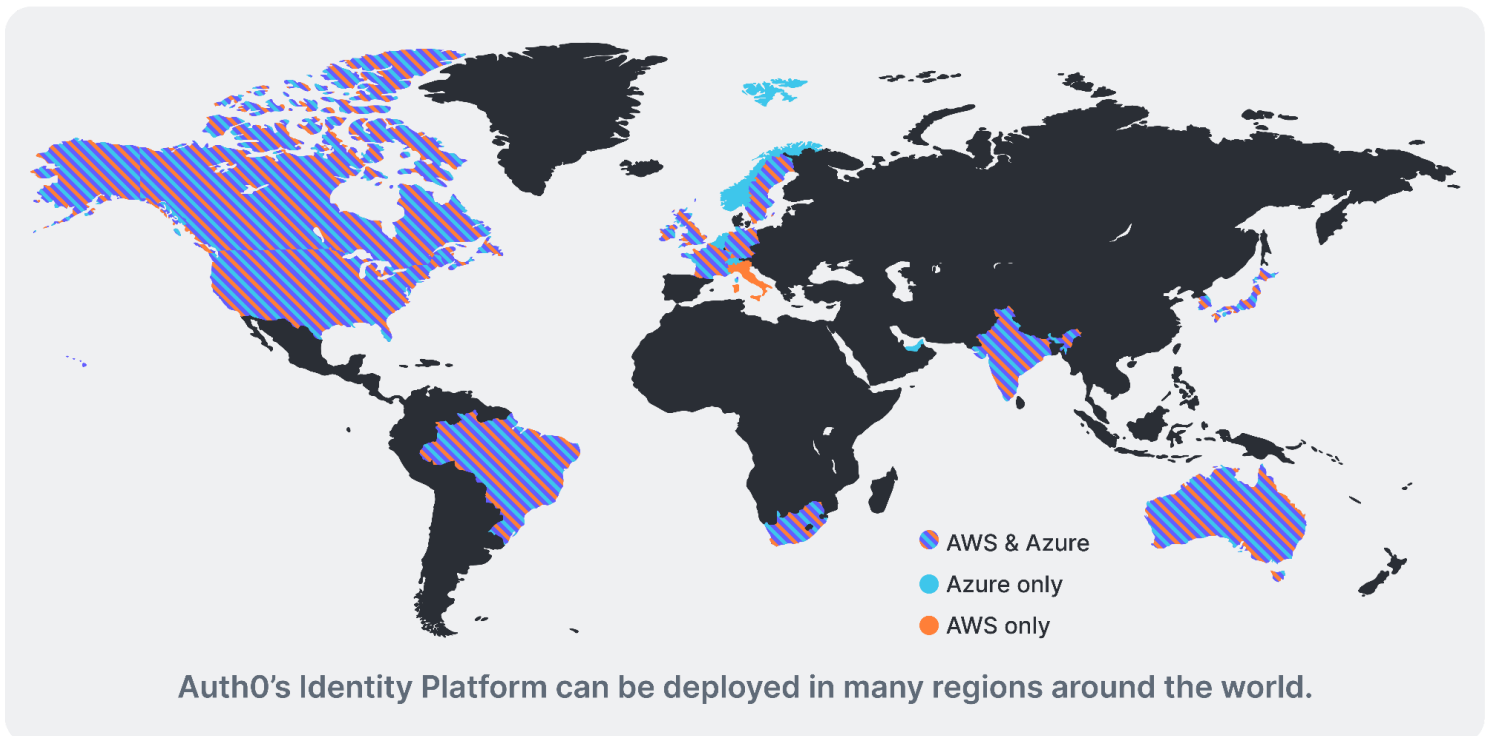

The power of the Auth0 platform, with the benefits of an isolated instance.

Private instances of the Auth0 identity platform give customers greater flexibility in the performance, compliance, and administration of their identity infrastructure. With deployments available globally through Amazon Web Services (AWS) or Microsoft Azure, customers can adhere to strict data privacy requirements, control the timing of updates and benefit from the high reliability and performance of dedicated resources—all without the hassle of maintenance.

A CIAM solution to meet your data residency compliance requirements

The Auth0 platform can be deployed in a number of regions to support industry and geographic compliance requirements including

- USA
- Europe
- Australia
- Japan
- Canada

Control your cloud—without sacrificing flexibility or convenience

Migrating to a cloud CIAM solution doesn't mean relinquishing administrative control over your identity infrastructure. Private deployments of Auth0 enable enterprise teams with:

- Fully isolated pre-production environments that update independently from the production environment
- Scheduled updates of the Auth0 platform on your timelines with the ability to roll back releases if necessary
- Hardened releases, validated by millions of customers in the public cloud before they touch your secure environment

High performance you can depend on

Identity is the front door to your application and can make or break the customer experience.

To keep your authentication services operating at the scale and reliability your business demands, private deployments of Auth0 can provide your enterprise with dedicated resources that can support up to 1,500 requests per second.

High availability cloud services with regional failovers and disaster recovery options allow you to be confident that your identity systems will be functioning 99.99% of the time—guaranteed.

“Being in the private cloud gave us the breathing room and bandwidth to not only keep doing things at scale but also build on additional capabilities and customization.”
