Introduction

When Edgar Degas died in September 1917, the art collection he left behind came as a surprise both because of its quality and because of its extent. The collection was dispersed the following year in three sales. This summary catalogue, a companion volume to the anthology entitled The Private Collection of Edgar Degas, provides comprehensive and detailed information about the contents of that collection. The more than five thousand works of art owned by Degas, which range from great paintings long associated with his collection to hoards of drawings and prints about which little is known, are catalogued here. Each entry includes, to the extent possible, descriptive information, provenance information related to Degas's ownership, selected references, current location, and an illustration.

The primary sources of knowledge about Degas's collection are the catalogues for the three Degas collection sales held in March and November of 1918. They were prepared by the dealers Ambroise Vollard, Joseph Durand-Ruel, and Joseph and Gaston Bernheim-Jeune, along with an additional expert, Loys Delteil, for the prints. Though invaluable, these catalogues were assembled in haste and have numerous shortcomings. Only a small proportion of the items are illustrated, and the often imprecise and sometimes inaccurate description of individual works presents a stumbling block to identification. In addition, large groups of works were sold under single catchall headings (e.g., "62 items, ancient and modern"); and sizeable quantities of miscellaneous "items from Delacroix's atelier" that Degas had owned were sold hors catalogue (uncatalogued) and thus are known about only from unpublished auction house records.

All the works that passed through the collection sales (as well as the sales of Degas's own work) were stamped with a Degas atelier stamp; in the case of drawings and prints these were often placed not on the works themselves but on the mounts, many of which were long ago removed and discarded or lost. Labels were also affixed to the backs of works at the time of the collection sales. These octagonal white labels with blue trim measured 1 $\frac{1}{8}$ by 2 $\frac{5}{8}$ inches and carried, from top to bottom, the following information: collection sale number, artist's name, title, medium, and the posthumous inventory number assigned to the work when Degas's estate was inventoried in late 1917 and early 1918 by Joseph Durand-Ruel and Ambroise Vollard. The labels were usually placed on the frame or stretcher bar of oil paintings and on the dark bluish-green backing of framed works on paper. In the course of subsequent remattings and reframings, these labels have not always been preserved.

The other important primary document for Degas's collection is a handwritten inventory by Degas himself—the beginnings of a catalogue of his collection. This inventory is now in a private collection. In it Degas recorded information on well over two hundred works, offering telling descriptions of pictures as well as facts and anecdotes about the sources and dates of his acquisitions. Since these notes were made retrospectively, there are inevitable lapses in the accuracy of remembered details.

Various other unpublished documents were consulted with profit: the posthumous inventory of Degas's studio mentioned above (Musée d'Orsay, Paris); dealers' records, in particular Vollard's stockbooks (Musée d'Orsay), the Durand-Ruel stockbooks (Archives Durand-Ruel, Paris), and the archives of the Galerie Bernheim-Jeune, Paris; annotated sale catalogues; procès-verbaux (handwritten minutes) from sales; and photographic archives in private and public collections. Visits to the Cabinet des Dessins in the Louvre and to the print and drawing study rooms of the National Gallery in Washington, D.C., the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, the British Museum, London, and other institutions—during which portfolios of works were combed through in search of Degas atelier stamps—led to some discoveries. Other leads came in response to an inquiry sent out last fall to dealers, collectors, and curators of drawings and prints in America and Europe.

Stamp of the Degas collection and atelier sales

This Summary Catalogue builds on the work of previous scholars, who, in studies devoted to the subject of Degas's collection or to individual artists represented in it, have made significant contributions to the identification of the works Degas owned and to the establishment of their provenances. This essential literature may be found in the References section at the end of this catalogue and in the Bibliography of its companion volume, The Private Collection of Edgar Degas. Limitations of space and format preclude giving complete bibliographical and exhibition histories in the entries.

Hundreds of individuals and dozens of institutions contributed materially to the realization of this summary catalogue. Their names are recorded on pages x–xi of the companion text. Again we thank them most cordially, as we do all the owners who generously provided documentation and photographs of the works included in this volume.

Notes to the Reader

THE SUMMARY CATALOGUE

This catalogue is arranged alphabetically by artist's surname. For each artist, works are grouped by medium, with entries for oil paintings first, followed by those for original works on paper (pastels, watercolors, drawings) and lastly, prints. Within each grouping, works are listed in the order in which they were sold in the three Degas collection sales (referred to here as Collection Sale I, Collection Sale II, and Collection Print Sale), following the sequence of the lot numbers. Works sold at the time of the auction but hors catalogue, and works Degas owned that were not included in the sales, appear last. This organization is intended to highlight the scope and nature of Degas's acquisitions in each field and to facilitate reference to the 1918 collection sale catalogues. Full bibliographic citations for the sale catalogues appear in the References section at the end of the volume.

Each entry has a number, which is keyed to the illustration, if there is one. Most entries contain descriptive information about the work of art; documentary information pertaining to Degas's acquisition of the work and its sale from his collection in 1918 (or disposal earlier); and identifying information in the form of catalogue raisonné references and the current location, if known.

An asterisk (*) preceding an entry number indicates that the work is included in the exhibition "The Private Collection of Edgar Degas," held at The Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, from October 1, 1997 to January 11, 1998. Other works also shown in the exhibition are listed immediately after the Summary Catalogue.

SOURCES OF DESCRIPTIVE INFORMATION

For works that it has been possible to identify, descriptive information, including attribution, title, date, medium, dimensions, and inscriptions, derives from the current owner or the catalogue raisonné or latest reference. Titles have been translated into English. When any portion of this information differs significantly from that recorded in the 1918 Degas collection sale catalogue, the discrepancy is noted following the collection sale reference.

For items that appeared in the 1918 sale catalogues but have not been identified with known works, descriptive information, including attribution, title, date, medium, dimensions, inscriptions, and collector marks, is based on the entries from those catalogues, again with titles translated into English. Unidentified works that were not listed in the 1918 catalogues have been described as fully as possible based on the documentation at hand, with the source of information cited at the References ("Ref.") line.

Dimensions: Measurements are given in centimeters, height proceeding width. For identified works, the dimensions have been supplied by the owner when available, or taken from an authoritative catalogue. Print dimensions refer to the plate, not the sheet, unless otherwise noted. For unidentified works, the dimensions are those recorded in the Degas sale catalogues or, for prints, those cited in catalogues raisonnés. Discrepancies between the actual dimensions of an object and those recorded in the sale catalogues are noted.

Illustrations: In the case of prints, which exist in multiples, a surrogate impression of an identified work has been illustrated when Degas's own impression could not be found. Where several different items of a series or suite of prints were sold in a single lot, generally only one securely identified image from the group has been illustrated.

DOCUMENTARY INFORMATION PERTAINING TO DEGAS'S ACQUISITION OF WORKS

Whenever possible, information is provided about how and when Degas acquired a work of art. The documentation comes largely from primary sources: inscriptions on the objects, Degas's handwritten inventory, dealer stockbooks, annotated sales catalogues, procès-verbaux from sales, and contemporary first-hand accounts (letters, diaries, etc.). When specific documentation on the date and source of acquisition is absent but primary sources reveal that a work was auctioned during Degas's lifetime, information about that sale is provided. To the extent possible, previously published findings have been critically evaluated and confirmed against original documents to resolve inaccuracies and contradictions. When documentation is unconfirmed, uncertainty is signaled by qualifiers (presumably, probably, possibly). Although Degas's inventory remains the principal source of information on this subject, whenever possible his notes were supplemented by concrete information from sales or from dealers' records, which were judged to be more reliable than Degas's memory of prices and acquisition dates.

DOCUMENTARY INFORMATION PERTAINING TO THE POSTHUMOUS DISPERSAL OF WORKS

Works included in the Degas collection sales of 1918 are identified by sale and lot number: for instance, Collection Sale I: 23.

Buyers' Names and Prices: Names of buyers and the prices paid are supplied for works purchased at these sales. This information derives from two principal sources: annotated catalogues of the sales and procès-verbaux, the official handwritten records made in the auction room at the time of the sales.

Unfortunately, the procès-verbal for Collection Sale I is lost. Thus, the names and purchase prices provided here for items included in Sale I are based on annotated sales catalogues. Inevitable discrepancies in names and figures recorded were resolved by consulting more than a dozen annotated catalogues of the sale, including nearly complete copies at the Galerie Bernheim-Jeune and the Archives Durand-Ruel, Paris.

The procès-verbaux do exist for Collection Sale II and the Collection Print Sale (they are in the Archives de la Ville de Paris, F. Lair-Dubreuil dossier no. 1599). Taken at the time of the sales by the commissaire-priseur, F. Lair-Dubreuil, these minutes record the name of the buyer (sometimes spelled phonetically or misspelled) and the price paid for each lot (both written-out and in numerals). In this summary catalogue, orthographic errors have been corrected when the buyers' names are well known or are verifiable from other documents. Names difficult to decipher are so signaled by a question mark, or alternate spellings are given. The procès-verbaux also record when lots were split, sold jointly with other lots, or added hors catalogue to the sales, information that has been included in this catalogue.

A crucial piece of the puzzle that enabled us to pin down the identities of hundreds of works was the name of the buyer. With buyers' names in hand we could find catalogues of their collections, and then exhibition catalogues in which the same buyers were recorded as lenders of the works, or museum catalogues in which they were recorded as donors. In these subsequent catalogues the works were often illustrated or more fully described. At times, the buyer's name led us directly to the present owner via the telephone book.

Similarly valuable was knowledge of previous owners: those who owned works before Degas acquired them. Deduced from collectors' stamps on the objects or notations in Degas's handwritten inventory, this information led to earlier sale catalogues, which sometimes provided a more complete description of the object than the Degas collection sale catalogues.

SUPPLEMENTARY PROVENANCE INFORMATION

Sales and exhibitions subsequent to the dispersal of Degas's collection are noted here only when they were the source of essential information on unidentified works. These citations represent the last recorded references to the objects and may prove helpful in the future identification or location of lost works.

IDENTIFICATION: REFERENCES AND CURRENT LOCATIONS

References: Citations are limited to authoritative catalogues and to publications that do one of the following: confirm Degas's ownership of a work or its inclusion in one of the collection sales; describe Degas's acquisition of a work; or provide information concerning the most recent whereabouts of a work whose present location is still unknown. Literature is cited in abbreviated form; full citations will be found in the References section in the back of the catalogue.

Unpublished documents are not cited, with the exception of Degas's hand-written inventory, which was transcribed in entry form with numbers by Ann Dumas in "Degas as a Collector" (Master's thesis, Courtauld Institute of Art, University of London, 1981), Appendix A. This reference is abbreviated as Degas inv.; the numbers were assigned by Dumas, not Degas himself.

A copy of the typed posthumous inventory of all of the possessions belonging to Edgar Degas at the time of his death, prepared by Joseph Durand-Ruel and Ambroise Vollard, was consulted at the Musée d'Orsay, Paris. It had been assembled in great haste and was superseded by the collection sale catalogues; therefore those inventory numbers are not included in this catalogue.

Current locations: Information regarding the present locations of works is included, when known, in the form of credit lines provided by owners.

Camille Pissarro described the acquisition of this work in a letter to his son Lucien dated Dec. 4, 1895: "Degas and Renoir are enthusiastic about Cézanne's work. Vollard showed me a drawing of some fruits, which they both wanted to acquire; they drew straws to determine the lucky one." (Pissarro 1980, p. 277)

Presumably the work sold as Modern School, Le Chasseur (buste)
Purchased, buyer's name illegible, for 1,050 fr.
Ref.: Degas inv., no. 28

Described by Degas as a bust-length portrait of a bearded hunter in a gray felt hat, with a green jacket and a gunpowder sack. The description fits the work now in the E. G.
Bührle Collection, Zurich (Fernier 1977–78, no. 71), but the provenance of the Bührle portrait seems to discount Degas's ownership of it.

"Courbet—

Bust-length portrait of a man, a hunter, gray felt hat, beard, green woolen jacket, cord of the powder horn wrapped around. / Seems to have been cropped, must have had completely different dimensions, perhaps cut from another picture. / Purchased 500 fr. / Monsieur de Montangan [sic] brought it to me in 1896, on behalf of a certain Colbert, picture restorer (this relining indicates that it was he alone who must have cropped the portrait). And this Colbert said that Courbet's sister recognized the subject of the portrait as a certain Letellier, a friend and hunting companion from Ornans. This Colbert must know more about it. It seems that he has since retired to Brie."

 Ref.: Degas inédit 1989, p. 408, letter D86, n. 1

It is not certain whether Durand-Ruel succeeded in buying this work for Degas at the Donop auction, since the only reference to the acquisition comes from a letter of June 2, 1897, in which Degas asked the dealer if it had been acquired. The work is not recorded in the Durand-Ruel stockbooks, it is not in the sale catalogue, and there is no other supporting documentation for Degas's ownership of it.

Eugène Delacroix and His Studio

According to the procès-verbal (handwritten minutes) of Degas Collection Sale II, many works attributed to Delacroix and his school were sold in large lots, hors catalogue (uncatalogued), at the end of the second day of the sale. They were described as items from the Delacroix studio ("pièces provenant de l'atelier Delacroix"). Some drawings by Delacroix may be identified as coming from certain of these large lots on the basis of their subject and subsequent provenance (see nos. 393–399). Presumably, other Delacroix drawings that were formerly owned by Degas but are not recorded in the sale catalogues were also part of these large lots (see nos. 400–406).

In his inventory (Degas inv., nos. 52–54), Degas recorded the following three volumes of assorted drawings by Delacroix:

A bound volume of facsimiles, letters, and sketches measuring 30 x 40 cm, with 39 works itemized in such categories as Cats, Medieval Costumes, and Sketches after Old Masters. Although these general subjects correspond to those of Delacroix drawings sold in the collection sales, it is not possible to match them to individual lot numbers without further information.

A small pocket album (15 x 9 cm) including 43 sheets of sketches in ink, graphite, and watercolor, which Degas purchased from Monsieur Jouve for 40 fr. and which, he noted, had previously belonged to Pierre Andrieu.

A small green album, 11½ x 6½ cm, with 20 pages of line drawings after statues.

It is likely that the drawings from these albums were either sold individually in the collection sales or included in the larger lots of multiple items sold in Collection Sale II.

Ref.: Wildenstein 1964, no. 572; see Degas inv., no. 70

National Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C., Gift of Sam A. Lewisohn 1951.5.1

Possibly Collection Sale I: 47 (Sold as Tahiti, paysage, 93 x 61 cm)

Purchased by Jos Hessel for 14,010 fr.

This is possibly the painting described by Degas as showing women in the water up to their knees that was acquired from Vollard in November 1898 as Négresses for 500 fr. The dimensions correspond to those listed for Collection Sale I: 47, reversed. See also Bathers at Tahiti, no. 488, and the reference in Wildenstein 1964, no. 567, to a lost work.

488

488. Bathers at Tahiti, 1897

Oil on burlap, 73.3 x 91.8 cm

Ref.: Wildenstein 1964, no. 564; see Degas inv., no. 70

The Barber Institute of Fine Arts, The University of Birmingham

Possibly Collection Sale I: 47

Purchased by Jos Hessel for 14,010 fr.

This is possibly the painting whose provenance is given in no. 487, above. Hessel had the picture now in Birmingham until January 1923. See also Bathers (Tahitian Landscape), no. 487, and Wildenstein 1964, no. 567.

489

*489. A Vase of Flowers, 1896

491

*491. In Brittany, 1889

Watercolor, gold paint, and gouache, 37.7 x 27 cm

Signed and dated left

Ref.: Pickvance 1970, pl. VIII; text p. 30

The Whitworth Art Gallery, The University of Manchester D. 1926.20

Possibly Collection Sale I: 177 (Sold as En Bretagne)

Purchased by Caron for 1,850 fr.

The possible identification with Collection Sale I: 177 is based on the virtually unique use of gold paint in a drawing of this subject and date. The dimensions and placement of inscription correspond, but in reverse, to those listed in the catalogue, although the medium, described as pastel, does not. If Sale I: 177 is not the Manchester drawing, it must be a lost work.

492

*492. La Orana Maria, 1894

Watercolor monotype, 26.5 x 18.2 cm

Collection Print Sale: 123 (Sold as La Vierge et l'enfant)

Purchased by Jos Hessel for 550 fr.

Ref.: Variant of Field 1973, no. 1; Degas inv., no. 76

Shinichi Kinoshita

Presumably the monotype that Degas described of a standing woman, a child on her shoulder, with a Tahitian house in the background, acquired from Gauguin for 50 fr. in December 1894.

493. The Bath

Watercolor monotype

Acquired as "Femme au bain, dessin," from the Gauguin sale, February 18, 1895, lot 59, for 28 fr.

494. Tahitian Hut

Watercolor monotype, 29 x 35 cm

Acquired as "Chaumière, dessin," from the Gauguin sale, Feb. 18, 1895, lot 61, for 40 fr., and described by Degas as a Tahitian landscape with a hut by the water.

Collection Print Sale: 125 (Sold as La Case, Taïti)

Purchased by Jos Hessel for 145 fr.

Ref.: Degas inv., no. 66

See Washington, Chicago, Paris 1988–89, p. 379, for a watercolor of the subject.

495

495. Tahiti (Te Fare Maorie), 1894

Colored monotype, 35 x 29 cm

Possibly the work acquired from the Gauguin sale, Feb. 18, 1895, as "dessin," lot 55, for 25 fr.

Collection Print Sale: 126 (Sold as Taïti)

Purchased by Vildrac for 250 fr.

Ref.: Field 1973, no. 3, as Te Fare Maorie

496

*496. Words of the Devil (Parau no varua), 1894

Ingres

Portrait de M^{lle} Gonin

peint à Florence en 1821

Catal. Delaborde -

J'ai eu ce portrait par Bernheim pendant plus de cinq mois en dépôt. Prix convenu 5000^{fr}. Le marché n'était valable qu'en novembre 1896, où je devais payer les 5000^{fr}. Mais Bernheim m'avertit alors que M^r Chomegaix parti pour le Transvaal et laissant ce portrait de sa grand'mère en gage pour dettes de bourse, avait écrit à la dépositaire qu'il prenait son gage. Impossible d'éclaircir tout cela. J'ai dû me débarrasser du tableau et l'ai rendu -

"Ingres—

Portrait of Mlle Gonin / painted in Florence in 1821 / Catal[ogue] Delaborde

I had this portrait from Bernheim-Jeune in my possession for more than five months. Price agreed upon 5000 fr. The transaction was not to take place until November 1896, when I was supposed to pay the 5000 fr. But Bernheim informed me that Monsieur Chomegaix [sic], who had departed for the Transvaal leaving this portrait of his grandmother as a guarantee against stock market debts, had written that he would reclaim the work. Impossible to figure it all out. I was obliged to give up the painting and returned it."

From Degas's inventory of his collection (Degas inv., no. 118). Private collection. See no. 635 in this catalogue.

Not in sale

Musée du Louvre, Paris, Département des

Arts Graphiques RF 23354

This work bears Degas and Guérin collection stamps.

Note:

Among the drawings by Ingres that Degas recorded in his inventory were a certain number of studies that have not been identified with individual works in the sales. These include mostly figure and drapery sketches for larger compositions, such as Study of a Nude for the Portrait of Mme Moitessier or Study of Drapery for One of the Doctors in "Jesus among the Doctors." Although the subjects correspond to those of works sold in the collection sale, without illustrations or further descriptions it is impossible to match them definitively to the corresponding lot numbers. (See Degas inv., nos. 85–89, 104–8, 111, 112, 116, 117, 125–28, 130.)

acheté par erreur. Ai cru, d'un peu loin, qu'on vendait un Corot.
Durand Ruel n'a pas voulu me le reprendre, tout en m'assurant qu'il était un excellent tableau, ce qui est vrai. Je me souviendrai de Moreau Nélaton, riant de l'aveugle, quand on me l'adjugea.

"Th. Rousseau—

Study of Mountains, Cantal valley / No. 221 Doria sale, May '99 / 1000 fr.

Bought by mistake, having thought, from a little distance, that they were auctioning a Corot. Durand-Ruel did not want to take it back, assuring me that it was an excellent painting, which is true. I remember Moreau-Nélaton laughing at my blindness when the work was knocked down to me."

Oiseaux, aquarelle

un soir, après dîner chez Burty boulevard des Batignolles, vers 1880, cet artiste accompagné par Hayashi qui servait d'interprète, se mit à faire, d'abord ^{pour Burty,} un écran sur un soie tendue sur châssis qu'il
avait apportée. (Oiseaux dans la neige) Puis fit pour chacun de nous, Manet

de Nittis et moi chacun une aquarelle de même elle-ci portée, il parait, mon nom. Je me rappelle que Manet quand son tour vint, demanda un cheval. Hayashi dut insister pour lui faire admettre que M^r Watanabé Sété ne faisait surtout que des oiseaux - Je voulus le remercier en lui faisant un vilain croquis avec son pinceau et me couvris de honte -

"Watanabe Sété [Seitei] / Japanese—

24 × 19 cm / Birds, watercolor

One evening sometime around 1880, after dinner at Burty's on the boulevard des Batignolles, this artist, accompanied by Hayashi, who served as interpreter, began making a screen out of a piece of silk stretched on a frame that he had brought with him (Birds in the Snow). This was for Burty. Then he painted a watercolor for each of us, Manet, de Nittis, and me. Mine has my name on it, it seems. I remember that when it was Manet's turn he requested a horse. Hayashi was obliged to remind him that Monsieur Watanabé Sété only did birds. I wanted to thank him by making a sketch with his brush, but it was ugly and I felt thoroughly ashamed."

"Soutzo (Prince Grégoire)—

View of the Acropolis at Athens / Painting given by Soutzo to my uncle Henri Musson, and given to me by my aunt after the death of her husband.

I also have several of his small drawings—view of the gulf of Geitoun, a village, fields—a small painted study of a tree. These pieces were given to me by Monsieur Jacques Riso of Athens, a painter who found them at the house of a relative who was also related to Soutzo and who inherited the works. / Soutzo had long been a friend of ours, and ever since my youth I have admired his talent. My cousin Anna Lasserre, my uncle Musson's daughter-in-law, recently informed me that the view of the temple of Theseus (painting) and an admirable small drawing (grove of olive trees near Athens with the Acropolis in the distance) are no longer in her possession, and that Soutzo's daughter has reclaimed them, even though they belong to her."

Works by Unidentified Artists

Note: Works Sold in Collection Sale II as École Moderne:

The second auction of Degas's collection, Collection Sale II, featured fifty-five paintings that were sold as anonymous works. In the catalogue they were designated "École Moderne." Of these, twenty may be identified with certainty as works by Degas; they are catalogued below as nos. D1–D20. Other "Modern School" pictures, including nos. 1054, 1063, 1066, 1067, 1072, and 1082, might also be by Degas. All the pictures by Degas that were sold as Modern School had been the subject of debate among the experts (Ambroise Vollard, Joseph Durand-Ruel, and Joseph and Gaston Bernheim-Jeune); some believed them to be by Degas, others did not. In the absence of a unanimous opinion as to the authorship of these debated pictures, the organizers had decided to include them in the second collection sale as anonymous works of the Modern School, and an announcement was made to that effect prior to the sale. Also sold under the heading Modern School were works from Degas's collection by Andrieu (no. 4), Delacroix (no. 205), Soutzo (no. 1009), presumably Courbet (no. 131), and quite possibly Couture (no. 132), Renoir (no. 1054), and Manet (no. 1094).

One painting by Degas had been included by error in Collection Sale I. It was his Portrait of a Man, Copy after Quentin de La Tour (Brame and Reff 1984, no. 48), which was catalogued as French School, 18th century; in other words, Degas's excellent copy of an eighteenth-century work was taken for an actual work of that period.

1053. The Chariot of Apollo

Oil on canvas, 58 x 50 cm

Collection Sale II: 8 (Sold as Modern School, Le Char d'Apollon)

Purchased by Mono (probably for Arthur Merrheim) for 175 fr.

Collection Sale II: 9

See Gustave Courbet (?), no. 131, above

1054. Seated Woman in a White Dressing Gown, with Bare Torso

Oil on cardboard, 6 x 21 cm

Possibly the Renoir oil study of a seated woman in a chemise with a black and blue striped stocking, putting on a boot (?), which Degas received as a gift from Renoir in 1874.

Collection Sale II: 10 (Sold as Modern School, Femme assise (peignoir blanc, torse découvert))

Purchased by Fiquet for 500 fr.

Ref.: See Degas inv., no. 165

The subject, medium, and dimensions of this work also correspond to those of Degas's Woman Seated (Lemoisne 1946–49, no. 350); it, however, was sold in the Degas Atelier Sale II, lot 5.

1055. Mount Vesuvius Erupting
