Carry Out Integrated Education, Promote the Integration of Persons with Disabilities and Healthy Individuals, and Jointly Build a Better Future

China, this ancient and vibrant land, is lighting up the beacon of progress for children with autism with its unique wisdom and experience. The Beijing Guangming Charity Foundation actively advocates and implements integrated education, striving to promote the integration of disabled and healthy individuals, so that every child can enjoy equal educational opportunities.

Integrated education is not only about caring and respecting children with autism, but also a reflection of social civilization progress. Through integrated education, children with autism can grow together, learn from each other, and progress together with ordinary children. At the same time, this also helps to cultivate the public's understanding and acceptance of special groups, promoting social harmony and development.

Let us join hands and use integrated education as a bridge to connect the hearts of every autistic child, allowing them to feel the warmth and care of society. Jointly moving towards a better future, writing a new chapter in the integration of disabled and healthy individuals based on China's experience.
