

WOLFGANG MUELLER

A Good Example of Peaceful Coexistence?

The Soviet Union, Austria, and Neutrality
1955–1991

Verlag der
Österreichischen Akademie
der Wissenschaften

Wien 2011

OAW

Contents

Acknowledgements	9
Introduction	13
Soviet-Austrian relations, 1945–1955	13
“Peaceful coexistence”	16
The Austrian state treaty and declaration of neutrality	20
The aim, sources and structure of this study	29
I. Laying the Groundwork and Changing Neutrality, 1955–1960	39
1. Two Differing Concepts of Neutrality	41
The Soviet attitude towards neutrality	43
The Soviet theory of neutrality in the late 1950s and 1960s	56
Austria’s neutrality, its Swiss model, and the Soviet interpretation	67
2. The Post-State Treaty Honeymoon	77
The establishment of friendly relations	79
Frictions	86
3. ...and its Sudden End	89
The Hungarian revolution	89
The recovery	95
4. Starting Anew: After the Hungarian Revolution	103
The Raab visit and the Lebanon crisis	106
Cultural relations and the World Youth Festival 1959	111
The Khrushchev visit	116
Economic relations	122
5. Summary: Soviet “Thaw” and the Making of a Neutral	127
II. Overcast, but Friendly? 1961–1972	133
6. The Soviet Union, Austria’s Rapprochement with the EEC, and the Convocation of the CSCE	135
The Soviet attitude towards an Austrian rapprochement with the EEC, 1959–1963	138
The Alleingang , 1963–1967	150
The EEC issue and the Soviet encouragement for convoking the CSCE, 1967–1972	162

7. The Czechoslovakian Crisis of 1968 and Austria's Military Vulnerability	175
The Warsaw Pact's intervention and the Soviet reputation in Austria..	175
Warsaw Pact plans and Austria's self-defense.....	180
8. Making Economic and Cultural Relations Mutual.....	187
Trade.....	187
Cultural relations and personal contacts.....	192
9. Summary: Soviet Containment and Encouragement; Austria's Ostpolitik and Further Neutralization.....	197
III. Détente, the Heyday of Multilateralism, and the Last Peak of the Cold War, 1973–1984	201
10. Political Relations and the Rise of Multilateralism.....	203
Kreisky, “active neutrality,” and Austrian-Soviet relations.....	207
The USSR and Austria on the international stage	215
11. A Thorn in the Side: Human and Cultural Contacts.....	225
Soviet dissidents, the Jewish exodus from the USSR, and the Austrian media	225
Cultural exchange, tourism, and the image of the other.....	230
12. Booming, but not Enough: Economic Relations	235
Austria's dependency and trade deficit.....	238
13. The Final Peak of the Cold War	245
To boycott or not to boycott?.....	248
Trade or embargo?.....	251
14. Summary: Declining Soviet Interest in Neutrality despite Austria's Efforts	253
IV. The Aftermath, 1985–1991	259
15. The End of the Cold War, European Integration, and the Obsolescence of the Special Relationship.....	261
Gorbachev, Austria's EC application, and the disintegration of the USSR.....	261
Humanitarian aid and economic relations	269
Human contacts, scientific and cultural cooperation.....	271
Conclusions	275
Documents	287
Document 1: Conversation A. Mikoian – J. Raab, Vienna, 24 April 1957 (in German).....	287

Document 2: Personal letter N. Bulganin – J. Raab, 8 January 1958 (in German and Russian)	293
Document 3: Conversation N. Khrushchev – A. Schärf and B. Kreisky, Moscow, 13 October 1959 (in German)	298
Document 4: Conversation A. Gorbach – N. Khrushchev, Moscow, 29 June 1962 (in German)	300
Document 5: Conversation N. Khrushchev – B. Pittermann, Moscow, 17 September 1962 (in German)	318
Document 6: The Democratic Lawyers Association's Theses on Neutrality, Sofia, 14 October 1962 (in English)	327
Document 7: Conversation A. Gromyko – K. Waldheim, Moscow, 22 March 1968 (in English, translated from Russian).....	328
Document 8: Conversation L. Brezhnev – B. Kreisky, Moscow, 8 February 1978 (in German)	330
Document 9: Report Austrian embassy Moscow – Austrian MFA, On Austrian Soviet Relations, 23 November 1985 (in German).....	333
Soviet Ambassadors to Austria, Austrian Ambassadors to the USSR.....	339
Abbreviations	341
Bibliography	343
Index	377