Former Yankee Rortvedt shines with the Rays

By GREG JOYCE

YANKEES NOTES

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Ben Rortvedt saw the writing on the wall towards the end of spring training that his time would soon be up with the Yankees.

As long as Jose Trevino and Austin Wells stayed healthy, they were going to be the catchers the Yankees brought north, and with Rortvedt out of minor league options, he expected to be moved.

But Rortvedt has taken his new opportunity and run with it, at least in the early going.

After being traded to the Rays as part of a three-way deal that landed the Yankees Jon Berti on the eve of Opening Day, Rortvedt has gotten off to a strong start. Through Saturday's 7-2 win over the Yankees, in which he drew a pair of walks as a pinch-hitter, he is now batting .333 with a .828 OPS in 27 games as part of a catching tandem.

"I think there's a lot of components," Rortvedt said after catching up with many of his former teammates on Friday. "I think it's just me going through the struggles that I have, learning about myself as a player, failing, learning what player I want to be, what player I think I can be, and just trying to show up and be the same player every day, not chasing results. Really showing up and trying to contribute to the team."

Rortvedt's biggest impact as a Yankee was catching Gerrit Cole down the stretch last season on the way to the AL Cy Young award, with Jose Trevino injured. Beyond that, Rortvedt struggled to carve out a role for himself because of injuries and then struggling to hit when he was healthy.

"He was tough for us to lose — and we didn't necessarily want to lose him to the Rays," manager Aaron Boone said. "He can really catch and throw. He's gifted back there physically, the receiving part of things, obviously a great arm. I think he's worked really hard at his hitting, too."

"Excited that at least he's getting a real opportunity and he's healthy for the most part. That was a little bit of a struggle when he was in Minnesota and then even the first couple years with us, he was pretty banged up with different things. But he's talented."

➤ DJ LeMahieu (non-displaced foot fracture) faced live pitching Saturday for the first time since his rehab assignment lasted just one inning on April 23. The veteran infielder took at-bats against rehabbing right-hander JT Brubaker at the Yankees' player development complex in Tampa and "had a good day of work," according to Boone.

The plan is for LeMahieu to take live batting practice again on Tuesday in Tampa, after which he could be ready to try a rehab assignment again.

➤ Tommy Kahnle (shoulder) made his second rehab appearance on Saturday with Single-A Tampa, throwing a scoreless inning with one strikeout on 15 pitches. He then threw another 10 pitches in the bullpen, Boone said, adding that "it went well."

Skenes tops 100 mph 17 times in MLB debut

By WILL GRAVES

PITTSBURGH — The moment hardly looked too big for Paul Skenes.

The top-ranked pitching prospect in baseball had a promising major league debut for the Pirates, working into the fifth inning against the Cubs on Saturday while offering a glimpse of what may be to come.

Skenes was charged with three runs in four-plus innings. He struck out seven, throwing 17 pitches of 100 mph or more. He also walked two and gave up a homer to Nico Hoerner in the fourth that just reached the first row of bleachers beyond the left-field wall.

As he walked off the field, the mustachioed 21-year-old received a loud ovation from a near-sellout crowd that included his more-famous girlfriend, LSU gymnast and social media influencer Livvy Dunne.

Skenes became the first Pirates pitcher aged 21 or younger to record at least seven strikeouts in his major league debut since Nick Maddox fanned 11 against the Cardinals in 1907 — 95 years before Skenes was born.

The Pirates teased Skenes' call-up on Wednesday after he breezed through seven starts at Triple-A Indianapolis. His arrival gave PNC Park a play-off-like atmosphere, or at least as much as it can feel like the playoffs in mid-May for a team that hasn't reached the postseason since 2015.

Fans lined up two and three deep behind the Pirates' bullpen beyond the center field fence to try and catch some of Skenes' pre-game routine. Nearby, the team store under the left field bleachers did a brisk business, with some ponying up $200 for jerseys with Skenes' No. 30 stitched on the back. — AP
