

Contents

Introduction	1
Roberta Gilchrist and Harold Mytum
1 The topography of monastic houses in Yorkshire towns	3
D M Palliser
1.1 Introduction	3
1.2 The locations of houses	4
1.3 Microtopography and the archaeologist	7
2 St. Leonard's Hospital, York: the spatial and social analysis of an Augustinian hospital	11
P H Cullum
2.1 Introduction	11
2.2 St Leonard's	14
2.3 Conclusion	18
3 Recording worked stone	19
David Stocker
3.1 Definitions	19
3.2 The potential of collection of worked stone	19
3.3 The recording of worked stone	23
3.4 The worked stones report	26
3.5 Conclusion	26
4 Building in religious precincts in London at the Dissolution and after	29
John Schofield
4.1 Introduction	29
4.2 The grand house and the transposed livery company hall	29
4.3 The filling out of the precincts	38
5 Water management in the urban monastery	43
C J Bond
5.1 Water supply	43
5.2 Provisional catalogue of references to water supply in urban religious houses	50
5.3 Charterhouses	55
5.4 Friaries	57
5.5 Distribution and utilisation of water within the monastery	64
5.6 Brewhouses	69
5.7 Fishponds	71
5.8 Water-Mills	72
5.9 Conclusion	74
6 The archaeology of urban monasteries in Britain	79
L A S Butler
6.1 The passage of time	79
6.2 The need for space	80
6.3 The patterns of circumstance	81
6.4 The material evidence	82
6.5 The organisation of space	82
6.6 Research design or rescue opportunism	83
6.7 Conclusion	85
7 The potential for studies of medieval tiles	87
J Stopford
7.1 Introduction	87

7.2	Recording the tiles from Bordesley Abbey	87
7.3	The tile fabrics	89
7.4	The tile industry at Bordesley Abbey	89
7.5	Conclusions	100
8	Bone assemblages from monastic sites: many questions but few data	107
	T P O'Connor
9	The monastic topography of Chester	113
	Simon W Ward
10	Pottery and glass in the medieval monastery	127
	Stephen Moorhouse
10.1	Pottery vessels	127
10.2	Pottery from excavations	128
10.3	Sources of the pottery	130
10.4	Glass	137
10.5	The total picture	140
10.6	Epilogue	142