

Contents

Introduction 6

1 Chapbooks to gift books 8

From beginnings to the Regency 14
Mid-Victorian instruction and entertainment 16
Walter Crane & Randolph Caldecott 18
Turn-of-the-century classics 20
In the wild wood: Kenneth Grahame 24
Peter Rabbit and friends: Beatrix Potter 26
Timeless fables: Aesop & La Fontaine 28
The Masters of fable and fear: Grimm & Hans Andersen 30
English eccentrics: Edward Lear & Lewis Carroll 32
Interpreting A Child's Garden of Verses 34
Struwwelpeter through the ages 36

2 Precious children: the '20s and '30s 38

The rebirth of the picture book 48
Big books: Babar & Orlando 50
English bears: Winnie the Pooh & Rupert 52
School stories through the ages 54
Swallows and Amazons for Ever! Arthur Ransome 56
"His love for what he sees so well": Harold Jones 58
Illustration in America in the 1930s 60

3 Wartime and reconstruction: the '40s and '50s 62

The virtues of scarcity: Puffin Picture Books 72
Mervyn Peake/Early Puffins 74
A born illustrator: Edward Ardizzone 76
"Wholesome reading for your children": Enid Blyton 78
Other worlds beneath and beyond:
    The Borrowers & C. S. Lewis 80
In the land of the free:
    American classics of the '40s and '50s 82
Sweet medicine for reluctant readers:
    Dr Seuss & Richard Scarry 84
"In an old house in Paris": Francophile books 86
Peaceable kingdoms: Tove Jansson & the Provensens 88
Wild things: Maurice Sendak 90

4 When we all dressed up: the '60s and '70s 92

"There's nuffin' like a Puffin" 102
A world of facts: Ladybird Books 104
Author-illustrators: Raymond Briggs & John Burningham 106
Masters of the zany:
    James Marshall, Quentin Blake, & John Lawrence 108
Romanticism revisited: Tomi Ungerer & Errol Le Cain 110
The Ahlbergs & Jan Pieńkowski 112
The truth of fantasy: Lucy M. Boston & Alan Garner 114
"Unhistorical romance": Joan Aiken 116
Out of the chocolate factory: Roald Dahl 118

5 Cold War to globalization: the '80s and '90s 120

English nostalgia: Ian Beck & Nicola Bayley 130
Children's books make news:
    The Harry Potter phenomenon 132
Funny haha and funny peculiar 134
Conclusion 135

Bibliography 136
Index 138
Acknowledgments 142

