

Contents

- vii Acknowledgments
- 1 INTRODUCTION | AUDRA SIMPSON AND ANDREA SMITH
- 31 CHAPTER ONE | DIAN MILLION
There Is a River in Me: Theory from Life
- 43 CHAPTER TWO | TERESIA TEAIWA
The Ancestors We Get to Choose: White Influences I Won't Deny
- 56 CHAPTER THREE | GLEN COULTHARD
From Wards of the State to Subjects of Recognition? Marx,
Indigenous Peoples, and the Politics of Dispossession in Denendeh
- 99 CHAPTER FOUR | ROBERT NICHOLS
Contract and Usurpation: Enfranchisement and Racial Governance in Settler-Colonial Contexts
- 122 CHAPTER FIVE | CHRISTOPHER BRACKEN
"In This Separation": The Noncorrespondence of Joseph Johnson
- 149 CHAPTER SIX | MARK RIFKIN
Making Peoples into Populations: The Racial Limits of Tribal Sovereignty
- 188 CHAPTER SEVEN | SCOTT LAURIA MORGENSEN
Indigenous Transnationalism and the AIDS Pandemic: Challenging
Settler Colonialism within Global Health Governance
- 207 CHAPTER EIGHT | ANDREA SMITH
Native Studies at the Horizon of Death: Theorizing Ethnographic
Entrapment and Settler Self-Reflexivity

235	CHAPTER NINE   MISHUANA R. GOEMAN
	Disrupting a Settler-Colonial Grammar of Place: The Visual Memoir of Hulleah Tsihnahjinnie
266	CHAPTER TEN   VERA B. PALMER
	The Devil in the Details: Controverting an American Indian Conversion Narrative
297	Bibliography
321	Contributors
323	Index