

Contents

Illustrations	xxix
Acknowledgements	xxxix
Map of the city	xxxiv
Introduction by Harold Acton	1

FLORENCE RISE OF THE CITY

- 1 The destruction of Fiesole by the Florentines in the early eleventh century; from Giovanni Villani's Croniche Fiorentine, translated by Rose E. Selfe 33

BADIA FIORENTINA

- 2 The origin of the Badia in the tenth century; from Giovanni Villani's Croniche Fiorentine, translated by Rose E. Selfe 35
- 3 How the office of Priors was first created, and housed in the Badia; from Giovanni Villani's Croniche Fiorentine, translated by Rose E. Selfe 36

THE BAPTISTERY

- 4 Why the Pisans gave Florence the two porphyry columns which now flank Ghiberti's 'Gates of Paradise' at the Baptistery; from Giovanni Villani's Croniche Fiorentine, translated by Rose E. Selfe 38
- 5 A pro-Brunelleschian view of how Lorenzo Ghiberti won the competition to produce the bronze reliefs on the north doors of the Baptistery; from Antonio Manetti's Life of Brunelleschi, translated by Catherine Enggass 39
- 6 The victor's view of how he won the competition to

- execute the north doors of the Baptistery in 1402; from Ghiberti's Commentarii, edited by Isabelle Hyman in Brunelleschi in Perspective 42
- 7 Ghiberti's autobiographical account of how he completed what Michelangelo was to call 'The Gates of Paradise', the gilt bronze east doors of the Baptistery, between 1424 and 1452; from Ghiberti's Commentarii, edited by Elizabeth Holt in A Documentary History of Art 43
- 8 The decoration of the Baptistery for the festival of San Giovanni; from Giorgio Vasari's Lives of the Painters, Sculptors and Architects 46
- 9 How the Baptistery was transformed in honour of the birth of the future Francesco I, and how Vasari got a job which no one else wanted; from Vasari's Lives... 49
- 10 Richard Lassels remembers St Zenobius and the elm which miraculously sprang into leaf when the Bishop's body was translated from San Lorenzo to Santa Reparata (the original Duomo) in the ninth century; from The Voyage of Italy (1670) 50

THE BARGELLO

- 11 The translation of a thirteenth-century inscription still to be seen on the Bargello, originally the Palazzo del Popolo; from Nicolai Rubinstein's 'The Beginnings of Political Thought in Florence' 52
- 12 A mishap in the Via del Proconsolo; from Franco Sacchetti's Il libro delle trecentonovelle, edited by E. Li Gotti, translated by Nicholas Havely 53
- 13 An American novelist reflects on the losses suffered by the religious houses in the cause of creating a national sculpture collection; from Henry James's Italian Hours 54

THE CAMPANILE

- 14 The building of the Campanile; from the life of Giotto in Vasari's Lives of the Painters, Sculptors and Architects 55
- 15 Giotto's Campanile; from Hippolyte Taine's Italy, translated by J. Durand 56
- 16 The 21-year-old Ruskin climbs the Campanile for the first time in November 1840; from The Diaries of John Ruskin, edited by J. Evans and J. Whitehouse 57

CASA GUIDI

- 17 Robert Browning's account of the death of Elizabeth Barrett Browning at Casa Guidi near the Palazzo Pitti; from William Wetmore Story and his Friends, edited by Henry James 59

THE CASCINE

- 18 The Cascine gardens in December 1732; from Joseph Spence's Letters from the Grand Tour 61
- 19 The young Duke of Hamilton and his tutor, Dr John Moore, encounter the 56-year-old Bonnie Prince Charlie and his young wife on an evening promenade; from A View of Society and Manners in Italy by John Moore 62
- 20 The monument to the Maharajah of Kolhapur in the Cascine; from Cook's Handbook to Florence, 1924 63

CERTOSA DI GALLUZZO

- 21 An Elizabethan Protestant visits the Certosa di Galluzzo; from An Itinerary . . . by Fynes Moryson, Gent. 65

THE DUOMO

- 22 With great difficulty Brunelleschi persuades the authorities that his plan for building the cupola without any internal support is feasible; from Antonio Manetti's Life of Brunelleschi, translated by Catherine Enggass 67

- 23 The consecration of the Duomo by Pope Eugenius IV in 1436; from The Vespasiano Memoirs by Vespasiano da Bisticci, edited and translated by W.G. and E. Waters 68
- 24 The placing of Verrocchio's bronze ball and cross on the summit of Brunelleschi's cupola; from Luca Landucci's Diario Fiorentino, translated as A Florentine Diary from 1450–1516 by Alice de Rosen Jervis 70
- 25 Paolo Uccello's cenotaph to Sir John Hawkwood in the Duomo; from Eve Borsook's The Mural Painters of Tuscany from Cimabue to Andrea del Sarto and 'L' Hawkwood d'Uccello et la "Vie de Fabius Maximus" de Plutarque in Revue de l'Art, translated by the author 70
- 26 A sixteenth-century Irish traveller notices Uccello's fresco of Sir John Hawkwood in the Duomo; from Henry Piers's manuscript A Discourse of H.P. his Travelles 72
- 27 Murder in the Cathedral: the Pazzi Plot and its aftermath in the spring of 1478; from Luca Landucci's Diario Fiorentino. 72
- 28 A Romantic vision of the Pazzi conspiracy and the murder in the Cathedral; from Joseph Severn's Life and Letters 74
- 29 The mob responds violently to an anti-Semitic sermon in 1488, causing the Commune to deal firmly with the preacher; from Tribaldo de' Rossi's Ricordanze, in The Society of Renaissance Florence by Gene Brucker 76
- 30 Less than a decade later the preaching of Savonarola produces happier results; from Luca Landucci's Diario Fiorentino 77
- 31 The excommunicated Savonarola continues to preach, and burn vanities, but abandons preaching in the Duomo; from Luca Landucci's Diario Fiorentino 78
- 32 A Welshman introduces the word 'cupola' into the English language in 1549; from William Thomas's Historie of Italie . . . 80
- 33 The Duomo; from Hippolyte Taine's Italy, translated by J. Durand 80

- 34 The story behind the Duomo's nineteenth-century façade; from Rudolf Wittkower's Gothic versus Classic: Architectural Projects in Seventeenth-Century Italy 83
- 35 The 'Scoppio del Carro' on Easter Day at the turn of the century; from Janet Ross's Italian Sketches 86

THE ENGLISH CEMETERY

- 36 Inmates of the English Cemetery; from People of Florence by Joseph Macleod 88

THE LUNGARNO

- 37 'A fine day in October' experienced by an American in 1834 from his hotel room on the Lungarno; from Letters of a Traveller; or, notes of things seen in Europe and America by William Cullen Bryant 91
- 38 A Prague-born poet in the Pensione Benoit, 13 Lungarno Serristori; from Rainer Maria Rilke's Tagebücher aus der Frühzeit 93
- 39 The colours of the Lungarno; from Italian Hours by Henry James 94

MERCATO VECCHIO

- 40 The Mercato Vecchio in the fourteenth century; from Antonio Pucci's Proprietà di Mercato Vecchio, translated by Nicholas Havely 95
- 41 The Mercato Vecchio in the late fifteenth century; from George Eliot's Romola 97

THE MISERICORDIA

- 42 The Misericordia, founded, according to tradition, in 1240; from Janet Ross's Old Florence and Modern Tuscany 100

MUSEO ARCHEOLOGICO

- 43 The 20-year-old Oscar Wilde enthuses over the Etruscans in the old Archaeological Museum (when it was in the Via Faenza); from The Letters of Oscar Wilde, edited by Rupert Hart-Davis 102

ORSANMICHELE

- 44 The miraculous origins of the Church of Orsanmichele; from Giovanni Villani's Croniche Fiorentine, translated by Edward Chaney 104
- 45 Guild rivalry behind the beauty of the exterior of Orsanmichele; from Creighton Gilbert's Italian Art 1400–1500. Sources and Documents in the History of Art 104
- 46 An English Catholic priest admires the sculpture on Orsanmichele in the mid-seventeenth century; from Richard Lassels's Voyage of Italy (1670) 105

OSPEDALI (HOSPITALS)

- 47 The Silk Guild petitions the Commune for official recognition of their sole patronage of the Ospedale degli Innocenti; from Luigi Passerini's Storia degli stabilimenti di beneficenza e d'istruzione gratuita della città di Firenze, in The Society of Renaissance Florence by Gene Brucker 107
- 48 The building and growth of the Innocenti; from Old Florence and Modern Tuscany by Janet Ross 108
- 49 An architect's view of what happens when you don't stick closely to the original plans of a fellow-architect of genius; from Antonio Manetti's Life of Brunelleschi, translated by Catherine Enggass 110
- 50 The children of slaves in the Innocenti; from Iris Origo's 'The Domestic Enemy' 111
- 51 A difficult patient in the Ospedale di Santa Maria Nuova; from Luca Landucci's Diario Fiorentino 114

- 52 A British humanist in the 1540s enthuses over the up-to-date facilities at the hospital of Santa Maria Nuova; from William Thomas's Historie of Italie . . . 114
- 53 A eulogy of the Grand Duke Pietro Leopoldo; from Travels through Italy, in a series of letters . . . by President Dupaty. Translated . . . by an Englishman 114
- 54 Dr Samuel Sharp finds something to admire in the bug-resistant beds at Santa Maria Nuova; from Samuel Sharp's Letters from Italy . . . in the years 1765, and 1766 116
- 55 The Hospital of San Giovanni di Dio as inspected in the 1780s; from John Howard's The State of the Prisons in England and Wales with preliminary Observations and an account of some foreign prisons and hospitals 117

PALAZZO CORSINI

- 56 A visit to the Palazzo Corsini in 1848; from Sophia Hawthorne's Notes in England and Italy 118

PALAZZO MEDICI

- 57 A letter from Benozzo Gozzoli to Piero de' Medici about work in progress on the chapel frescoes in the Palazzo Medici in July 1459; from Carteggio inedito d'artisti dei secoli XIV. XV. XVI, edited by Giovanni Gaye, translated by Edward Chaney 120
- 58 Galeazzo Maria Sforza informs his father, the Duke of Milan, how he was received by Cosimo il Vecchio in the newly decorated chapel in the Palazzo Medici; from a letter in the Archivio di Stato di Milano translated by Rab Hatfield in The Three Kings and the Medici 121
- 59 Lorenzo the Magnificent; from Francesco Guicciardini's History of Florence, translated by Cecil Grayson 122
- 60 The Medici's final abandonment of the family palazzo in the mid-seventeenth century; from John Chetwode Eustace's A Classical Tour through Italy 126

- 61 The Neapolitan Luca Giordano's Baroque frescoes in the Palazzo Medici-Riccardi admired by a Frenchman in the late eighteenth century; from Travels through Italy, in a series of letters . . . by President Dupaty. 127

PALAZZO PITTI

- 62 An inaccurate but interesting early account of the Palazzo Pitti and the Fortezza di Belvedere; from Fynes Moryson's An Itinerary . . . describing Florence as he saw it in 1594 129
- 63 The Pitti, in the time of Ferdinand I, considered the most magnificent palace in the world; from The Life and Letters of Sir Henry Wotton, edited by Logan Pearsall Smith 130
- 64 A visit to the Palazzo Pitti and the Boboli Gardens in the mid-seventeenth century; from Richard Lassels's Voyage of Italy (1670) 131
- 65 A novel method of extracting a tip; from Johann Keyser's Travels . . . 133
- 66 The Earl of Cork meditates on the history of Palazzo Pitti and, paraphrasing Bishop Berkeley, prophesies American imperialism; from Letters from Italy, in the years 1754 and 1755, by the late Right Honourable John Earl of Corke and Orrery 134
- 67 A hurried visit to Palazzo Pitti in 1770; from Music, Men and Manners in France and Italy by Charles Burney 136
- 68 An American granted an audience at Palazzo Pitti with the Grand Duke Leopold II; from Fenimore Cooper's Gleanings in Europe 137
- 69 Mid-nineteenth-century balls at Palazzo Pitti, hosted by the Grand Duke Leopold II; from What I Remember by Thomas Adolphus Trollope 139
- 70 The courtyard of Palazzo Pitti in the summer of 1944; from Florentine Art under Fire by Frederick Hartt 141

PALAZZO RUCELLAI

- 71 Criticism of Alberti's mid-fifteenth-century designs for the Palazzo and Loggia Rucellai; from Vasari's Lives of the Painters, Sculptors and Architects 143
- 72 The festivities to celebrate the wedding of the 18-year-old son of Giovanni Rucellai with a sister of Lorenzo de' Medici in the Piazza Rucellai; from Giovanni Rucellai's Zibaldone, edited by Alessandro Perosa, translated by Edward Chaney 143

PALAZZO STROZZI

- 73 A neighbour's-eye-view of the construction of the Palazzo Strozzi during the late fifteenth century; from Luca Landucci's Diario Fiorentino 145

PALAZZO VECCHIO AND PIAZZA DELLA SIGNORIA

- 74 The origins of the Palazzo Vecchio; from Nicolai Rubinstein's 'The Piazza della Signoria in Florence' in Festschrift Herbert Siebenhüner 147
- 75 Cellini falls foul of Eleanor of Toledo in the Palazzo Vecchio; from The Life of Benvenuto Cellini by Cellini, translated by Robert H.H. Cust 148
- 76 The government of Florence under Francis of Lorraine who, in 1745, had also become Holy Roman Emperor; from Letters from Italy, in the years 1754 and 1755, by the late Right Honourable John Earl of Corke and Orrery 151
- 77 The Commune's lions produce surviving offspring in the Piazza della Signoria, outside what are now the Uffizi; from Giovanni Villani's Croniche Fiorentine, translated by Nicholas Havelly 151
- 78 The demands of the Ciompi in 1378; from Cronache e memorie del tumulto dei Ciompi (author anonymous) in Gene Brucker's The Society of Renaissance Florence 152

- 79 A Parliament in the Piazza della Signoria and the punishment of plotters against Piero de' Medici; from Luca Landucci's Diario Fiorentino 155
- 80 A fifteenth-century giraffe and other exotic animals in the Piazza della Signoria presented as diplomatic gifts; from Luca Landucci's Diario Fiorentino 155
- 81 The execution of Savonarola in the Piazza della Signoria, May 1498; from Luca Landucci's Diario Fiorentino 156
- 82 An eye-witness account of the installation of the 'David' outside the Palazzo Vecchio in 1504; from Luca Landucci's Diario Fiorentino 158
- 83 A wild-beast hunt in the Piazza della Signoria in 1514; from Luca Landucci's Diario Fiorentino 159
- 84 An eight-sided temple built by Antonio da Sangallo the Elder as part of the celebrations to welcome the Medici Pope Leo X to Florence in 1515; from Luca Landucci's Diario Fiorentino 160
- 85 San Giovanni 1581: the Festa degli Omaggi in front of the Palazzo Vecchio; from Michel de Montaigne's Journal du Voyage en Italie, translated by Edward Chaney 161
- 86 The casting of the 'Perseus' – the success of which endeavour Cosimo I had doubted; from The Life of Benvenuto Cellini by Cellini, translated by Robert H.H. Cust 162
- 87 Preferring Bandinelli to Michelangelo in the mid-seventeenth century Piazza della Signoria; from Il Mercurio Italico by John Raymond 166
- 88 The Grand-ducal zoo in the early eighteenth century; from Johann Keysler's Travels . . . 167
- 89 A sensitive mid-nineteenth-century appreciation of the sculpture in the Piazza; from Hippolyte Taine's Italy 167
- 90 The statues in the Piazza della Signoria – early twentieth century; from Aaron's Rod by D.H. Lawrence 169

- 91 An English teenager visiting Fascist Florence in 1937 describes the Gioco del Calcio, then held in the Piazza della Signoria; from the unpublished diaries of Damaris Hyde-Thomson 171

PONTI (BRIDGES)

- 92 The construction of the Ponte alla Carraia; from Giovanni Villani's Croniche Fiorentine, translated by Edward Chaney 173
- 93 How the Ponte alla Carraia collapsed and many people were thereby killed; from Giovanni Villani's Croniche Fiorentine, translated by Rose E. Selfe 173
- 94 The Ponte alle Grazie, formerly the Rubaconte; from Giovanni Villani's Croniche Fiorentine, translated by Edward Chaney 174
- 95 The 1269 flood and how it carried away the Ponte Santa Trinita and the Ponte alla Carraia; from Giovanni Villani's Croniche Fiorentine, translated by Rose E. Selfe 174
- 96 Ordering a piece of jewellery on the Ponte Vecchio in 1819; from Lady Morgan's Italy 175
- 97 The entry of Hitler into Florence on 9 May 1938; from The Life and Death of Radclyffe Hall by Lady Una Troubridge 176
- 98 Ugo Procacci's eye-witness account of the blowing up of the Florentine bridges in August 1944; from Frederick Hart's Florentine Art under Fire 177
- 99 Horace Walpole describes the November 1740 flood which cracks the Ponte Vecchio; from The Letters of Horace Walpole 180
- 100 The 1966 flood and the Ponte Vecchio; from Francis Steegmuller's 'A Letter from Florence' in Stories and True Stories 181

SANTISSIMA ANNUNZIATA

- 101 Michelozzo's tabernacle in Santissima Annunziata which contains the miracle-working painting of the Annunciation

- (said to have been finished by an angel); from the life of Michelozzo Michelozzi in Vasari's Lives of the Painters, Sculptors and Architects 183
- 102 John Evelyn admires Andrea del Sarto's 'Madonna del Sacco' and describes the restoration of del Sarto's fresco of the funeral of San Filippo Benizzi in the forecourt of Santissima Annunziata, a few years before his visit; from Evelyn's Diary 184
- 103 Albert Camus meditates among the tombs of Santissima Annunziata; from Reflections on Florence, edited by Simone Bargellini and Alice Scott 185

SANTA CROCE

- 104 An unsuccessful hunt in the Piazza Santa Croce to celebrate the baptism of the first son of the Grand Duke Francesco I; from Bastiano Arditi's Diario di Firenze e di altre parti della cristianità, translated by Edward Chaney 187
- 105 The celebration of carnival in the Piazza Santa Croce in 1819; from Antoine Laurent Castellan's Letters on Italy 187
- 106 A 1594 visit to Santa Croce and two tall stories about Michelangelo inspired by his tomb; from Fynes Moryson's An Itinerary . . . 189
- 107 Stendhal enthuses over Volterrano and Bronzino in Santa Croce in 1811; from The Private Diaries of Stendhal, edited and translated by Robert Sage 190
- 108 Byron meditates on the tombs of four great Florentines in Santa Croce; from Childe Harold's Pilgrimage by Lord Byron 192
- 109 An Englishwoman, Susan Horner, visits Santa Croce and admires its Gothic painting; from Susan Horner's 1847-48 manuscript diary in the British Institute of Florence 193
- 110 Ruskin instructs his readers how they should look at Giotto in the Bardi Chapel; from Mornings in Florence 194
- 111 Ruskin gets the most out of the worn tomb slab of an ancestor of Galileo in Santa Croce; from Mornings in Florence 196

- 112 Miss Lavish and Lucy Honeychurch find Santa Croce without using their Baedeker; from E.M. Forster's A Room with a View 199

SAN LORENZO

- 113 Brunelleschi starts work on San Lorenzo and quarrels with Donatello; from Antonio Manetti's Life of Brunelleschi, translated by Catherine Enggass 202
- 114 Vasari decides on his own iconography and respects Brunelleschi's intentions in painting an altarpiece for the Martelli chapel in San Lorenzo; from Vasari's Lives of the Painters, Sculptors and Architects 204
- 115 The obsequies of the Emperor Ferdinand III in San Lorenzo in 1657; from Sir John Reresby's Travels and Memoirs . . . 205
- 116 The first coherent account in English of Michelangelo's New Sacristy in San Lorenzo; from Richard Lassels's manuscript Voyage of Italy (1664) 206
- 117 Samuel Rogers is temporarily obsessed by Michelangelo's sculpture of Lorenzo, Duke of Urbino, in the New Sacristy; from The Italian Journal of Samuel Rogers 207
- 118 A young Englishwoman writes evocatively of the sculpture in Michelangelo's New Sacristy; from the 1937 diaries of Damaris Hyde-Thomson 208
- 119 Vasari's version of the origins of the Cappella dei Principi; from the final page of his Lives of the Painters, Sculptors and Architects 208
- 120 A typically enthusiastic seventeenth-century account of the unfinished Cappella dei Principi behind San Lorenzo; from Richard Lassels's manuscript Voyage of Italy (1664) 209
- 121 The Cappella dei Principi compared with the Taj Mahal; from Joseph [Moyle] Sherer's Scenes and Impressions in Egypt and in Italy 210

- 122 An Elizabethan view of the Biblioteca Laurenziana; from Robert Dallington's Survey of the Great Dukes State of Tuscany (1605) 211
- 123 The Biblioteca Laurenziana two hundred years later; from Lady Morgan's Italy 211
- 124 A young architect takes a more purely aesthetic and technical view of Michaelangelo's library and Mannerist vestibule; from Herbert Horne's 1889 diary of his first visit to Italy 213

SAN MARCO

- 125 The rebuilding of the monastery of San Marco in the mid-fifteenth century; from Vasari's Lives of the Painters, Sculptors and Architects 214
- 126 The merits, and the consecration, of the new Dominican Convent of San Marco; from Giuliano Lapaccini's Cronaca di San Marco, translated by Creighton Gilbert in Italian Art 1400-1500: Sources and Documents in the History of Art 215
- 127 The siege of San Marco in 1498, and the arrest and torture of Savonarola; from Luca Landucci's Diario Fiorentino 216
- 128 Mid-seventeenth-century enthusiasm for the work of Fra Bartolomeo in the church of San Marco; from Richard Lassels's Voyage of Italy (1670) 218
- 129 Fra Angelico at San Marco; from Hippolyte Taine's Italy 219
- 130 A modern account of the frescoes of Fra Angelico; from Sir John Pope-Hennessy's Fra Angelico 220

SANTA MARIA DEL CARMINE

- 131 The significance of Masaccio's frescoes in the Brancacci Chapel of Santa Maria del Carmine; from Bernard Berenson's Italian Painters of the Renaissance 222
- 132 How Michelangelo got his nose broken in the Brancacci Chapel and Henry VIII lost the chance to employ Benvenuto Cellini; from The Life of Benvenuto Cellini, by Cellini, translated by Robert H.H. Cust 224

SANTA MARIA NOVELLA

- 133 Cardinal Latino, nephew of the Pope and a Dominican, lays the foundation stone of Santa Maria Novella's magnificent nave, and concludes peace between the Guelfs and the Ghibellines in the Piazza; from Giovanni Villani's Croniche Fiorentine, translated by Rose E. Selfe 226
- 134 Leon Battista Alberti designs the upper part of the façade and the portal of Santa Maria Novella at the request of Giovanni Rucellai in circa 1456; from Vasari's Lives of the Painters, Sculptors and Architects 227
- 135 Luca Landucci records the completion of Ghirlandaio's fresco cycle and the carved stalls behind the main altar of Santa Maria Novella in 1490; from his Diario Fiorentino 228
- 136 For better or worse Cosimo I and Vasari modernize Santa Maria Novella and plan to do the same for Santa Croce; from Vasari's Lives of the Painters, Sculptors and Architects 228
- 137 The Strozzi and the Medici fight it out in a cinquecento chariot race on the eve of San Giovanni in the Piazza Santa Maria Novella; from Michel de Montaigne's Journal du Voyage en Italie, translated by Edward Chaney 229
- 138 A nineteenth-century description of the chariot race and the corso; from Fenimore Cooper's Gleanings in Europe 230
- 139 Boccaccio and Santa Maria Novella; from Lady Morgan's Italy 232
- 140 Ghirlandaio's frescoes in the Tornabuoni Chapel of Santa Maria Novella; according to John Ruskin; from Mornings in Florence 233
- 141 Henry James reacts against Ruskin in Santa Maria Novella; from his Italian Hours 235

SAN MINIATO

- 142 The martyrdom of San Miniato and the building of his church; from Giovanni Villani's Croniche Fiorentine, translated by Rose E. Selfe 237

- 143 A group of trecento artists working at San Miniato discuss the state of modern art and women's make-up; from Franco Sacchetti's Il libro delle trecentonovelle, edited by E. Li Gotti, translated by Edward Chaney 238
- 144 A rainy excursion to San Miniato in 1848; from Susan Horner's 1847/48 manuscript diary in the British Institute of Florence 240

SANTA TRINITA

- 145 The Guelfs subdivide into Blacks and Whites and fight in the Piazza Santa Trinita; from Giovanni Villani's Croniche Fiorentine, translated by Rose E. Selfe 242
- 146 A fifteenth-century Florentine leaves money to provide dowries and enable four orphan girls to marry in Santa Trinita each year; from the will of Bongianni Gianfigliuzzi, translated by Rab Hatfield 243
- 147 Aby Warburg interprets Ghirlandaio's Adoration of the Shepherds in the Sassetti Chapel; from 'Francesco Sassetti's Last Injunctions to his sons' (1907) 244

SANTO SPIRITO

- 148 The building of the new church of Santo Spirito gets off to a slow start just before the death of Brunelleschi; from Antonio Manetti's Life of Brunelleschi, translated by Catherine Enggass 246

SESTO FIORENTINO

- 149 The Ginori factory in the 1870s; from Italy Revisited by Antonio Gallenga 249

LA SPECOLA

- 150 An American Italophile focuses upon the anatomical waxworks of Gaetano Zumbo; from The Works of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow 250

- 151 Belated tributes to Galileo in the Natural History Museum (now known as La Specola after the astronomical observatory in which Sir Humphry Davy and Michael Faraday used the Grand Duke's 'great burning glass' to burn a diamond);
from Sophia Hawthorne's Notes in England and Italy 251

TEATRO DELLA PERGOLA

- 152 The Pergola and the state of Florentine theatre in 1766; from Dr
Samuel Sharp's Letters from Italy . . . in the years 1765, and 1766 252
- 153 A box in the Pergola about a century later; from Italian Sights and Papal Principles, by J.J. Jarves 253

THE UFFIZI

- 154 An early account of the Uffizi and the Studiolo of Francesco I, both seen as cabinets of curiosities; from Fynes Moryson's An Itinerary . . . 254
- 155 Two sons of England's leading master-mason meet the Grand Duke Ferdinando II whilst copying works of art in the Uffizi in 1638; from the Diary of Nicholas Stone Junior 256
- 156 The Grand-ducal collections in the Palazzo Vecchio and the Uffizi are also seen as a sequence of cabinets; from Richard Lassels's 1654 manuscript Description of Italy 257
- 157 An early nineteenth-century view of the development of the Uffizi; from Letters on Italy (1820) by Antoine Laurent Castellan 259
- 158 An unenthusiastic eighteenth-century response to the Venus de'
Medici; from Tobias Smollett's Travels through France and Italy 262
- 159 An ecstatic reaction to the same Venus in 1789; from Travels in France and Italy . . . by Arthur Young 262
- 160 A refreshingly open-minded response to Titian's Venuses in the Uffizi; from Hippolyte Taine's Italy 264
- 161 A more complex American Protestant response to the second of these pictures, the Venus of Urbino; from Mark
Twain's Innocents Abroad 265

- 162 An early description of Botticelli's Birth of Venus; from Walter Pater's Studies in the History of the Renaissance 266
- 163 Side by side in the Uffizi; Giotto, Cimabue, and Tactile Values; from Bernard Berenson's Italian Painters of the Renaissance 268

VIA DE' BARDI

- 164 The bankruptcy of the Bardi and the destruction of their street; from George Eliot's Romola 271

THE APPROACHES TO FLORENCE

- 165 A mid-sixteenth-century view of Florence and its environs; from Sir Thomas Hoby's Travels and Life . . . written by himself 275
- 166 Galileo's Villa at Arcetri, where John Milton claims to have met him in the summer of 1638; from Milton and the Italian Cities by John Arthos 276
- 167 Two other Englishmen visiting Florence in the summer of 1638 are impressed by the Medici Villa del Poggio Imperiale outside the Porta Romana; from the Diary of Nicholas Stone Junior 277
- 168 A nineteenth-century view of the approach to Florence; from Letters from Italy and Switzerland by Felix Mendelssohn 279
- 169 The eccentric Sir George Sitwell buys Montegufoni; from Great Morning by Osbert Sitwell 280
- 170 The Medici villas; from the life of Michelozzo Michelozzi in Vasari's Lives of the Painters, Sculptors and Architects 281
- 171 Galeazzo Maria Sforza, the 15-year-old son of the Duke of Milan, is entertained by the Medici at their villa at Careggi in 1459; from a letter in the Archivio di Stato di Milano, translated by Rab Hatfield in The Three Kings and the Medici 282
- 172 Cosimo I's patronage of Niccolò Tribolo at Castello; from Vasari's Lives of the Painters, Sculptors and Architects 283
- 173 An enthusiastic early description of Tribolo's work in Cosimo I's garden at Castello; from William Thomas's Historie of Italie . . . (1549) 285

- 174 An Elizabethan visits the completed gardens of Castello in 1594; from Fynes Moryson's An Itinerary . . . 286
- 175 A late-sixteenth-century love-nest-cum-hunting-lodge; from unpublished chapters of Fynes Moryson's An Itinerary . . . in Shakespeare's Europe, edited by Charles Hughes 287
- 176 The Villa Gamberaia; from Harold Acton's Memoirs of an Aesthete 288
- 177 The Villa Salviati and the murder of Duke Jacopo's mistress by a jealous wife; from Harold Acton's The Villas of Tuscany 289
- 178 The Horner sisters describe the Villa Stibbert; from Walks in Florence by Susan and Joanna Horner 290
- 179 Two English Royalists in exile visit the Grand Duke Ferdinand II at Poggio a Caiano; from Sir John Reresby's Travels and Memoirs . . . 292
- 180 The extraordinary gardens and waterworks of Pratolino in the late sixteenth century; from Robert Dallington's Survey of the Great Dukes State of Tuscany (1605) 292
- 181 The best and last (c. 1819) description of the magnificent gardens of Pratolino just before their almost total destruction; from Antoine Laurent Castellan's Letters on Italy (1820) 294
- 182 The Franciscan Monastery in Fiesole; from Yesterdays of an Artist-Monk by Dom Willibrord Verkade OSB 300
- 183 A Welsh poet is driven 'pazzo' by the summer heat and mosquitoes in a villa in the hills near Scandicci (1947); from The Collected Letters of Dylan Thomas, edited by Paul Ferris 302

LIFE, CUSTOMS, AND MORALS

- 184 England's role in the decline of pre-Medicean banking in Florence; from Fernand Braudel's Civilization and Capitalism; 15th–18th Century, translated by Sian Reynolds 305
- 185 The Black Death; as described by Boccaccio in his introduction to the Decameron (1358), translated by Edward Chaney 306

- 186 Slavery in early Renaissance Florence; from Iris Origo's 'The Domestic Enemy' 309
- 187 A Carmelite monk turned painter (Fra Filippo Lippi) has to be confined due to his uncontrollable lust for the opposite sex, but eventually succeeds in abducting a young nun and marrying her; from Vasari's Lives of the Painters, Sculptors and Architects 311
- 188 Crime and punishment in 1500; from Luca Landucci's Diario Fiorentino 313
- 189 Violence in sixteenth-century Florence: an executioner is lynched, ostensibly for bungling the decapitation of a young officer but perhaps partly due to his responsibility for the execution of Savonarola and his two confreres five years earlier; from Luca Landucci's Diario Fiorentino 314
- 190 Renaissance snow-sculpture; from Luca Landucci's Diario Fiorentino 314
- 191 Florentine fashions in the early 1530s; recorded by the continuator of Luca Landucci's Diario Fiorentino 315
- 192 Cosimo I eulogized as a Machiavellian Prince by a contemporary visitor to Florence; from William Thomas's The Historie of Italie . . . (1549) 315
- 193 Michel de Montaigne dines with the Grand Duke Francesco I and Bianca Cappello in November 1580; from his Journal du Voyage en Italie, translated by Edward Chaney 316
- 194 A French philosopher visits the Florentine prostitutes in 1581; from Michel de Montaigne's Journal du Voyage en Italie, translated by Edward Chaney 317
- 195 An English traveller visits Giambologna's workshop (next door to his house in Borgo Pinti), in 1594; from Fynes Moryson's An Itinerary . . . 318
- 196 Wine, silk, and the late sixteenth-century diet and economy; from Robert Dallington's Survey of the Great Dukes State of Tuscany (1605) 318
- 197 Bella figura and the decline of Florentine wit in the sixteenth

- century; from Robert Dallington's Survey of the Great Dukes State of Tuscany (1605) 321
- 198 The use of forks in late sixteenth-century Florence; from Fynes Moryson's An Itinerary . . . 322
- 199 Grand-ducal interference in matters of criminal justice and the punishment for throwing an Englishman in the Arno; from Robert Dallington's Survey of the Great Dukes State of Tuscany (1605) 323
- 200 The 14-year-old Robert Boyle visits a Florentine brothel with his tutor and gets chased by two bisexual friars; from An Account of Philaretus during his Minority 325
- 201 Florentine gentry in the time of Ferdinando II; from Richard Lassels's 1654 manuscript Description of Italy 327
- 202 A circumcision in a house in the Jewish ghetto; from Richard Lassels's manuscript Voyage of Italy (1664) 327
- 203 Lady card-players in the mid-seventeenth century; from Richard Lassels's Voyage of Italy (1670) 328
- 204 Carnival in 1755; from letters written by Robert Adam to his family in Edinburgh, published by John Fleming in Robert Adam and his Circle in Edinburgh and Rome 329
- 205 His Royal Highness, the octogenarian Cosimo III; from Some Observations made in Travelling through France, Italy, &c. in the years 1720, 1721, and 1722 by Edward Wright 330
- 206 The Cicisbeo; from Letters from Italy in the years 1754 and 1755, by the late Right Honourable John Earl of Corke and Orrery 331
- 207 The Casino, opera, and ballet at the end of the eighteenth century; from John Moore's A View of Society and Manners in Italy 332
- 208 The Florentine prisons in the 1780s during the reign of Pietro Leopoldo; from The State of the Prisons in England and Wales with preliminary Observations and an account of some foreign prisons and hospitals by John Howard 333
- 209 The Carnival in 1829; from James P. Cobbett's Journal of a Tour in Italy 334

210	A nostalgic comparison between Grand-ducal and post-Risorgimento Florence; from Old Time Travel by Alexander Innes Shand	336
211	D.H. Lawrence compares socialism and fascism in Florence; from the 1924 Epilogue of Movements in European History by 'Lawrence H. Davison'	337
212	Envoi: Florence in 1844; from Charles Dickens's Pictures from Italy	338
	Bibliography	341
	Index	347