

Contents

List of contributors	vii
Acknowledgements	ix
List of abbreviations	x
Introduction: British veterans after the First World War	1
DAVID SWIFT AND OLIVER WILKINSON
1 The deep roots of the British Legion: the emergence of First World War British veterans' organisations	17
MIKE HALLY
2 Ex-servicemen and the Soldiers', Sailors' and Airmen's Families Association, 1919–21	34
PAUL HUDDIE
3 Between workers and soldiers: the relationship between the Labour Party and ex-servicemen after the First World War	48
MARCUS MORRIS
4 'A fighting man and a thinking man': the British Left, ex-servicemen and working-class culture, 1914–24	65
DAVID SWIFT
5 Revolution, ex-servicemen and the Cork Branch of the National Federation of Discharged and Demobilised Sailors and Soldiers, 1918–21	82
JOHN BORGONOVO
6 'It's up to you now to fight for your own country': Ireland's Great War veterans in the War of Independence, 1919–21	104
STEVEN O'CONNOR

vi Contents

7	'Still in the ranks of the old Corps, though not on active service': women's veteran organisations in interwar Britain	122
	KRISZTINA ROBERT
8	Paternalism and prosthetics: life for disabled veterans and their families on a post-war settlement	142
	MARTIN PURDY
9	Wounded in a mentionable place: the (in)visibility of the disabled ex-serviceman in interwar Britain	158
	JESSICA MEYER
10	Ex-Prisoners of War, 1914–18: veteran association, assimilation and disassociation after the First World War	172
	OLIVER WILKINSON
	Bibliography	191
	Index	203