

On the basis of the Thomist and Pietist tradition, Christian August Crusius (1715–1775) elaborated a philosophically challenging and influential alternative to the philosophy of Christian Wolff. For the first time, this edited collection offers a rigorous overview of the work of the Leipzig-based philosopher and theologian.

THE SERIES: WERKPROFILE

The series Werkprofile (Work Profiles) addresses the oeuvre of individual philosophers, scientists, and writers of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, publishing annotated editions and detailed studies. It focuses on significant authors who have not received sufficient scientific attention yet in spite of their reputation within the contemporary theoretical discourses. Accordingly, the annotated editions and interpretative studies seek to reconstruct the internal relationships within a given oeuvre, as well as discuss its theoretical contributions to the contemporary discussions. By taking a dual perspective that considers internal and external aspects, the volumes in this series aim to uncover new theoretical material as well as illuminate how new theoretical understanding arose and impacted the world of the Enlightenment. The series thus provides a new vehicle for generating knowledge about the intellectual culture of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries.
