

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	x
Abbreviations	xii
INTRODUCTION	1
Chapter 1
CONTEXTUALIZING THE PRESENT STUDY	3
1.1 Paul, 1 Peter, and Empire	4
1.1.1 Insights from the Pauline Discussion	4
1.1.2 First Peter and Empire	11
1.1.3 Furthering the Work on 1 Peter	17
1.2 Domination, Resistance, and Ideology	19
1.2.1 The Contributions of James Scott	19
1.2.2 Applications to the Present Study	23
1.3 Time, Space, and the Social Order	25
1.3.1 The Ideological Nature of “Time”	27
1.3.2 The Ideological Nature of “Space”	35
1.4 Converging Lines of Inquiry: The Present Study	40
Chapter 2
THE SOCIO-HISTORICAL CONTEXT	43
2.1 The Imperial Cults: An Overview	43
2.1.1 Historical Development in Anatolia	43
2.1.2 Ritual and Infrastructure	48
2.1.3 Their Remarkable Diversity	52
2.1.4 Indigenous Initiatives or Imperial Impositions?: Hybridity	55
2.1.5 Representing Roman Power	59
2.2 First Peter: Establishing Parameters for Ideological Analysis	62
2.2.1 Authorship and Date of Composition	62
2.2.2 Provenance and Destination	67
2.2.3 Formulating a Working Hypothesis for 1 Peter	70
Chapter 3
TIME IN THE IMPERIAL CULTS	73
3.1 A New Calendar for Asia and the Reinterpretation of Time	74
3.2 Imperial Festivals: Shaping the Rhythm of Time	83
3.3 “Imperium Sine Fine”: The Future of an Empire without End	89
3.4 Conclusion	96

Chapter 4

TIME IN 1 PETER	97
4.1 From “Before the Foundation” to “the Last of the Ages” (1:20): A Primopetrine Thesis of Time	97
4.2 The Power of Now: The Present as a State of Eschatological Urgency	100
4.2.1 The Ethical Imperative of the Present	101
4.2.2 Valorizing Estrangement and Suffering in the Present	107
4.3 The Past in 1 Peter: Writing Empire Out of History	111
4.3.1 The Present in the Past: Reinterpreting Scripture, Reinterpreting History (1:10–12)	111
4.3.2 The Contest for History and the Politics of Identity	115
4.4 The Future in 1 Peter: Complicating the Things to Come	119
4.4.1 Hiddenness, Revelation, and Reserve: De-Colonizing the Future	121
4.4.2 Judgment and Vindication: Relativizing Roman Justice in Anatolia	123
4.4.3 The Rhetoric of Impermanence: Circumscribing Empire	124
4.5 Conclusion	127

Chapter 5

SPACE IN THE IMPERIAL CULTS	131
5.1 The Location and Prominence of Imperial Cultic Sites	133
5.2 Imperial Temples: Ideology in Marble and Stone	135
5.2.1 Ephesus	135
5.2.2 Aphrodisias	138
5.2.2.1 Allegorical Figures	139
5.2.2.2 Idealized Ethnic Personifications	139
5.2.2.3 Emperors and Captives	141
5.2.2.4 Scenes from Greek Mythology	142
5.2.3 Ankara	143
5.2.3.1 The Spatial Ideology of the Res Gestae	143
5.2.3.2 Text as Monument	147
5.3 The Imperial Cults and Sanctuaries of Traditional and Local Gods	149
5.4 The Imperial Cults and the Transformation of Civic Spaces	151
5.5 Conclusion	154

Chapter 6

SPACE IN 1 PETER	157
6.1 The Spatial Production of Non-Belonging	158
6.1.1 Exile: παρεπίδημος, πάροικος, παροικία	159
6.1.2 To the Diaspora, from Babylon	164
6.2 The Spatial Production of Belonging	169

6.2.1	The οἶκος πνευματικός (2:5): Household or Temple?	169
6.2.2	The Locus of Belonging: οἶκος πνευματικός (2:5) as Spatial Production	173
6.3	Spatial Imagination, Belonging, Resistance	175
6.4	Conclusion	177
CONCLUSION: (RE)PLACING THE EMPEROR, (RE)CONFIGURING THE UNIVERSE		179
Bibliography		183
Index of Biblical References		195
Index of Modern Authors		199