

Contents

Preface . . . . .	7
-------------------	---

Part I: Texts from First Isaiah and the discourse on the Assyrian Empire

Hugh G. M. Williamson

The Evil Empire: Assyria in Reality and as a Cipher in Isaiah . . . . .	15
---	----

Matthijs J. de Jong

Assyria and the Beginnings of the Book of Isaiah. Isaiah 6+8 and 28–31 Revisited . . . . .	41
---	----

Reinhard Müller

From Carchemish and Calno (Isa 10:9) to the Book of Isaiah. Paradigmatic Images of Imperial Hubris in Isa 10:5–15 . . . . .	61
--	----

Jacob Stromberg

Figural History in the Book of Isaiah. The Prospective Significance of Hezekiah's Deliverance from Assyria and Death . . . . .	81
---	----

Ronnie Goldstein

Military Terminology in Rabshakeh's Message, Hebrew רָבָּר , and Akkadian urbī . . . . .	103
---	-----

Graeme Auld

Chronicles—Isaiah—Kings . . . . .	115
-----------------------------------	-----

Part II: Babylon and Persia in the Book of Isaiah and texts from Babylonian, Persian and Hellenistic times

Uwe Becker

Isaiah 24–27 and Intertextuality . . . . .	129
--	-----

Anja Klein

Babylon Revisited. A New Look at Isa 13 and Its Literary Horizon . . . . .	141
--	-----

Reinhard G. Kratz

Isaiah and the Persians . . . . . 155

Joachim Schaper

Land, Freedom and the Kingdom of Yahweh in Isaiah 56–66.

Trito-Isaiah as an Example of Resistance Literature . . . . . 169

Alison Salvesen

LXX Isaiah as Prophecy? Supposed Historical Allusions in LXX Isaiah . . . 185