

Contents

Preface XI

Acknowledgements XX

List of Illustrations XXII

- 1 Prologue: Setting the Stage 1
  - 1 Who Did, or Did Not, Travel to Italy 1
  - 2 Dutch Artists Who Painted Italy at Second Hand 4
  - 3 Jacob van Swanenburg and Pieter Lastman in Italy 5
  - 4 Advice about Travel 7
  - 5 On the Road in Italy: Nicholas Stone Jr. 12
  - 6 The Material Evidence: Collecting Italian Art in Holland 17
  - 7 Van Mander's Account of Remarkable Italian Paintings in Dutch Collections 18
  - 8 A Sampling of Amsterdam Collections: 1630-1660 24
  - 9 Rembrandt at the Art Market 26
  - 10 A Contrast in Collecting: Joachim von Sandrart in Amsterdam and Bavaria 30

- 2 Attitudes: Critical, Admiring, and Curious toward Rembrandt 39
  - 1 Rembrandt's Acquaintances Condemn His Disregard for Italian Values: Huygens, Sandrart and De Lairese 39
  - 2 Pels, De Decker, and De Geest: Polarizing Attitudes 49
  - 3 Rembrandt's Singular Manner: Houbraken 56
  - 4 Rembrandt's Naturalism in Stefano della Bella's Model Books 58
  - 5 Rembrandt's Goal in Art 62

- 3 Rembrandt's Collection and How He Used It: the Canonical and the Unusual 72
  - 1 Drawing from the Original: Mantegna, Leonardo, Raphael, Titian 73
  - 2 Reminiscences and Variations 82
  - 3 Life Study Fused with Art 94
  - 4 Sculpture as Substitute for Life Study 96

- 4 Pragmatic Solutions 102
  - 1 Borrowed Plumes Easily Disguised 102
  - 2 The Supper at Emmaus of c. 1629 110

- 3 Rembrandt and the Madonna of the Rosary: Structuring the Stage 117
- 4 Judas Returning the 30 Pieces of Silver: Caravaggio and Leonardo da Vinci 119
- 5 Two People in One Frame 122
  - 5.1 The Shipbuilder and his Wife, 1633: Griet Jans Interrupting Jan Rijcksen at Work 123
  - 5.2 The Ruffo Aristotle and the Bust of Homer, 1653 129
  - 5.3 The Ruffo Homer, 1663 133
- 5 Appropriating for Commentary: Rembrandt's Critique of Titian, Raphael, and Leonardo 139
  - 1 Christ Driving the Money Changers from the Temple: the 1626 Painting and the 1635 Etching 139
  - 2 The Hundred Guilder Print: Exploiting Raphael, Michelangelo, Leonardo 148
    - 2.1 Raphael's Il Morbetto 150
    - 2.2 Raphael's School of Athens 152
    - 2.3 Michelangelo's Prince 154
    - 2.4 Leonardo's Last Supper 155
- 6 Appropriation and Deviation: Responding for Alternatives 158
  - 1 Diana and Actaeon with Callisto and Nymphs: Referencing the Italians 158
  - 2 The Flute Player and Flower Girl: an Alternative to Titian 165
  - 3 The Female Nude 171
    - 3.1 Danae, 1636+ 178
    - 3.2 Bathsheba, 1654 182
    - 3.3 A Woman Bathing in a Stream (Callisto), 1654 185
- 7 Rembrandt Perceived by the Italians: Castiglione, the Ruffo Collection, and La Maniera Gagliarda 189
  - 1 Giovanni Benedetto Castiglione: Inspired Improvisations 189
  - 2 Rembrandt's Ruffo Series 192
  - 3 Abraham Brueghel's Intermediary Role in the Ruffo Commissions 196
  - 4 Guercino: Business-like, Efficient, and Respectful 200
  - 5 Preti: Grudging Accommodation 206
  - 6 Salvator Rosa: Independent, Arrogant, and Uncooperative 208

- 7 Brandi: Eager to Please 211
- 8 La Maniera Gagliarda 216
- 9 Baciccio: the Last Word 224

Bibliography 227

Index 251