

Contents

Contributors	xi
Acknowledgements	xv
Asia and Ethnographic Methods: An Introduction Nayantara Sheoran Appleton and Caroline Bennett	xvii
SECTION I: REFLEXIVELY RE-READING THE FIELD	1
1 Astronauts of the Western Pamirs: Mobility, Power, and Disconnection in High Asia Till Mostowlansky	3
2 Re-searching and Re-positioning the Self and the Field: Investigating the Nation-State Through Narratives from the Borders Rimple Mehta and Sandali Thakur	21
3 Violence from Another Angle: The Cold War and Contemporary Cambodia Caroline Bennett	43
4 Researching Karachi's Spatial Politics: Processes and Practices of Ethnography in Urbanity Sarwat Viqar	65

SECTION II: THINKING ACROSS SPACE AND TIME	85
5 'The Child as Method'? Paradigm Shifts, Positionality, and Participatory Methods for Researching Children in Asia Kathie Carpenter	87
6 Comparison as Method in India and Papua New Guinea Lorena Gibson	115
7 The Bali of Anthropology and the Anthropology of Bali: Research in a Fast-Moving Part of Asia Graeme MacRae and Lee Wilson	143
SECTION III: NOTES ON POSITIONALITY	169
8 'We Have Always Been Cosmopolitan': Towards Anthropologies of Contemporary Complexity in Japan Paul Hansen	171
9 Asia as Feminist Ethnographic Method? Notes on Mobility, Social Media, and Studying Up Nayantara Sheoran Appleton	195
10 Identity Politics, Fieldworkers, and Globalisation: A Japanese Company in Hong Kong as a Fieldsite Yi Zhu	219
11 Comprador, Translator, or Cartographer? Thoughts on Methodological Positions Jia-shin Chen	249
Index	271