

Contents

List of figures	page viii
List of contributors	ix
Series editors' foreword	xii
Acknowledgements	xiii
1 Introduction: the emergent critical history of intellectual disability – Patrick McDonagh, C. F. Goodey, and Tim Stainton	1
2 Conceptualization of intellectual disability in medieval English law – Wendy J. Turner	26
3 'Will-nots' and 'cannots': tracing a trope in medieval thought – Irina Metzler	45
4 'Some have it from birth, some by disposition': foolishness in medieval German literature – Janina Dillig	64
5 Exclusion from the eucharist: the re-shaping of idiocy in the seventeenth-century church – C. F. Goodey	80
6 'A defect in the mind': cognitive ableism in Swift's Gulliver's Travels – D. Christopher Gabbard	104
7 Sensationalism and the construction of intellectual disability – Tim Stainton	128
8 Peter the 'Wild Boy': what Peter means to us – Katie Branch, Clemma Fleet, Nicola Grove, Tim Lumley Smith, and Robin Meader	148
9 'Belief', 'opinion', and 'knowledge': the idiot in law in the long eighteenth century – Simon Jarrett	162
10 Idiocy and the conceptual economy of madness – Murray K. Simpson	190
11 Visiting Earlswood: the asylum travelogue and the shaping of 'idiocy' – Patrick McDonagh	211
Select bibliography	238
Index	255