

Contents

Acknowledgements ix

List of Figures, Graphs and Tables x

Introduction 1

- 1 Conceptualising the International Art Market 5
- 2 The 'Booming Export Market' for French Modernist Art 7
- 3 Causes of Translocation 11
- 4 Foreign Currency Volatility and Translocation 17
- 5 The Macroeconomic Perspective 19
- 6 Collector Case Studies 26

1 Economic Disruption and the Monetisation of French Collections 29

- 1 French Collecting of French Modernist Art 29
- 2 Capital Flight from France 35
- 3 Asset Liquidation in Practice 41
- 4 Private Wealth Destruction in France 43
- 5 The Popular Front and a Return to Capital Flight 48
- 6 The Broader European Experience 51
- 7 The Importance of Supply-Side Factors 52

2 Samuel Courtauld as Private Collector and Public Donor 54

- 1 Courtauld as Industrialist and Art Collector 54
- 2 Economics and the Courtauld Collection 61
- 3 Courtauld and the Purchasing Power of the Pound 62
- 4 Seurat at the Tate Gallery 68
- 5 A Comprehensive Collection of Degas 73
- 6 Sunflowers at the 'Famous Gallery' 75
- 7 Securing Modern Masterpieces 79
- 8 The Courtauld Institute 82
- 9 Courtauld's Private Collection on Loan 82
- 10 Samuel Courtauld as Private Collector and Public Donor 83

3 Albert Barnes as Currency Opportunist and 'Visionary Art Educator' 87

- 1 From Pharmaceuticals to the Barnes Foundation 87
- 2 Collecting French Modernist Art 90
- 3 US Dollar Purchasing Power and Cézanne at the Barnes Foundation 93

- 4 Barnes as Currency Opportunist 98
- 5 Price Inflation and Currency Devaluation 102
- 6 Barnes as 'Visionary Art Educator' 104
- 7 Picasso, African Masks and Object-Based Learning 106
- 8 Barnes as Author and the Making of Chaim Soutine 109
- 9 Cézanne and Consumer Transfer at the Barnes Foundation 112
- 10 Private Collectors and French Modernist Art in America 114
- 11 The Barnes Legacy 117
- 4 Kojiro Matsukata and the Economics of Rodin in Japan 120
- 1 Shipbuilding and Art Collecting 120
- 2 Japanese Collectors and the Purchasing Power of the Yen 124
- 3 Rodin's Reception in Japan 133
- 4 Eve at the Tokyo National Museum 138
- 5 Balzac at the Tokyo School of Fine Arts 141
- 6 The Economics of Rodin in Japan 142
- 5 Institutional Inertia and the National Gallery of Victoria in Australia 145
- 1 The National Gallery of Victoria (NGV) 146
- 2 The 'Nucleus' Strategy at the NGV 148
- 3 The NGV's Turn toward Modern Art 150
- 4 An Institutional 'Tipping Point' for French Modernist Art? 152
- 5 The Tate Gallery and Post-Impressionist Art 156
- 6 FBC Purchasing Power in the Interwar Period 158
- 7 'Modern Art' Strategy Trumped by the 'Nucleus' Strategy 162
- 8 Ideological Opposition to the 'Horrors of Paris' 165
- 9 £2,000 for Cézanne's 'Best' Work? 166
- 10 Structural Resistances and Degas at the NGV 169
- 11 Degenerates, Perverts and a Cheap Van Gogh 172
- 12 Institutional Inertia at the NGV 175
- 6 Assis Chateaubriand at the Museu de São Paulo and the Turn Toward Brazilian Modernism 177
- 1 Industrialisation in Argentina and Brazil 177
- 2 Purchasing Power in Argentina and Brazil 180
- 3 The Museu de Arte de São Paulo (MASP) Appears 'Almost Overnight' 184
- 4 World Tour of 'Masterpieces' From the MASP 188
- 5 Ballerinas and Racehorses in São Paulo 193

6	Pietro Bardi as Museum Director and Tastemaker	196
7	Denial of 'Ultra-Moderns' and 'Local Prophets'	198
8	The Turn Toward Brazilian Modernism	200
9	The São Paulo Museum of Modern Art (MAM-SP)	201
10	Tarsila Amaral and Cultural Cannibalism in Brazil	202
11	The First São Paulo International Biennial	206
12	From Vanguard to Rear-Guard in Thirty Years	209
Conclusion 211
1	Private Collectors and Translocation	211
2	Taste Formation and Economics	214
3	Consequences of Translocation	218
4	The Fall of the Franc as a Factor Influencing Translocation	221
Appendix A: The International Gold Standard 225
Appendix B: Archival Currency Data Calculations 229
Appendix C: Interwar Translocation of Paul Cézanne's Paintings of Mont Sainte-Victoire 232
Appendix D: Modern Art as Part of the Broader Art Market 236
Bibliography 241
Index 255		