

The authors

Andrzej Siemieniewski, bishop of Legnica, is professor of spiritual theology at the Pontifical Faculty of Theology, Wrocław; member of the Academic Council of the Polish Bishops' Conference; member of the Polish Bishops' Conference Committee for Liaison with the Polish Ecumenical Council. 2013–2019 he was a member of the Executive of the Catholic Fraternity of Charismatic Covenant Communities and Fellowships. He is the author of many books and articles on spiritual theology.

Mirosław Kiwka is assistant professor in the department of metaphysics at the Pontifical Faculty of Theology, Wrocław. Member of the Polish Society of St Thomas Aquinas (PTTA). He is the author of many scholarly articles on philosophy of religion.

Is there a fundamental conflict between the hierarchical and charismatic dimensions of the Church? Starting in the biblical era and continuing to the present day, our study shows the complementarity of the two dimensions, revealing how Baptism in the Holy Spirit, the gift of tongues, and the global pentecostalization of Christianity are rooted in a tradition dating back to apostolic times.