

Contents

1	Introduction	1
	References	9
2	Convenience Dimensions	15
	Convenience in Financial Motive	16
	Convenience in Professional Opportunity	18
	Convenience in Behavioral Willingness	21
	Structural Convenience Model	23
	Crime Convenience Triangle	25
	Financial Crime Categories	27
	References	30
3	Online Convenience	37
	Offenders from Offline to Online	38
	Computer Crime Research	41
	Outsider Business Cybercrime	47
	Insider Business Cybercrime	50
	Cambridge Cybercrime Database	53
	References	55

4	External Offenders	63
	Case Study of Movie Piracy	64
	Case Study of Foreign Aid Fraud	75
	Case Study of Cryptocurrency Crime	85
	Case Study of Industrial Espionage	88
	Case Study of Covid-19 Fraud	93
	Chief Executive Officer Fraud	97
	References	102
5	Internal Offenders	111
	Case Study of Embezzlement	112
	Case Study of Money Laundering	120
	Case Study of Internal Bank Fraud	128
	Case Study of Manipulation	132
	Gendered White-Collar Crime	139
	References	140
6	Technology Issues	149
	Digitally Enabled Identity Gap	149
	Eighteen Internet Characteristics	152
	Online Crime Terminology	159
	Underground Market Services	162
	Fake World Wide Web Sites	167
	References	169
7	Policing Cybercrime	175
	Case Study of Global Travel Fraud	176
	Law Enforcement Approaches	178
	Digital Forensics Intelligence	183
	Law Enforcement Knowledge Work	184
	References	187
8	Enforcement Knowledge	191
	Theoretical Knowledge Requirements	192
	Empirical Knowledge Requirements	196
	Knowledge Management Approaches	201
	Knowledge Organization Characteristics	206
	References	210

9	Online Grooming	219
	Online Sexual Offenders	221
	Internet Characteristics	224
	Internet Relationships	226
	Online Grooming Legislation	228
	Virtual Offender Communities	230
	European Grooming Project	235
	References	240
10	Offline Case Studies	245
	Austria: Biathlon Union	245
	Congo: Mercy Corps Aid	255
	Denmark: Public Railroad	263
	References	270
11	Conclusion	277
	References	278
	References	281
	Index	317