Contents

Ack	rnowl	ledgementsv	ii
Tak	ole of	Casesx	v
Tał	ole of	Legislation	ci
1.		Making of the Italian Constitution and its Evolution
		Introduction
	II.	The Albertine Statute	3
	III.	The Fascist Regime, the Second World War and the
		Transition to the Republic (1922-1945)	6
	IV.	The Constituent Assembly (1946-1948)	8
	V.	The Rigidity of the Republican Constitution1	1
	VI.	Procedures for and Limits on Constitutional
		Amendments1	5
	VII.	The Most Important Constitutional Amendments1	8
	VIII.	The Evolution of the Italian Republican Constitution2	0
		A. The First Phase (1948–1992): A Republic Ruled by
		Political Parties2	0
		B. The Second Phase (1993–2013): In Search of a
		Majoritarian Democracy2	2
		C. The Third Phase (2013–2021): A Republic with a
		De-institutionalised Party System?	4
	IX.	Conclusion	5
		her Reading2
		0
2.	The	Italian Constitution within the 'Composite' European stitution2	7
	I.	Introduction	27
		Openness to the International Order and its
		Foundations	28
	III.	The Constitutional Principles on International Law
		The 'European Journey' of the Constitutional Court
		The 'Counter-limits' Doctrine
		The European Convention of Human Rights in the
		Italian Legal System	39

	VII.		nstitutional Rules and Practice of Implementing Law	41
			The Government's Duty to Inform and the
		A.	Parliamentary Scrutiny Reserve	43
		B.
		D.	The Early Warning Mechanism and the Political	17
		C	Dialogue in the EU The Role of the Italian Parliament in Implementing
		C.
	3.7111	~	EU Measures
			nclusion
	Furti	ier F	Reading	45
3.			Sovereignty and Separation of Powers
	I.		roduction	46
	II.		e Democratic Principle in the Italian
			nstitution: The Right to Vote and to be Elected	48
	III.		ect Democracy: The Abrogative Referendum
			l its Different Usages
	IV.	-	presentative Democracy: The Electoral System and its
		Evc	lution	55
		A.	An Electoral Law Written by the Parties:
			The Proportional System (1948–1993)	55
		B.	An Electoral Law Written by the People:
			The Majoritarian System (1993-2005)	56
		С.	An Electoral Law Written by the (Centre-right)
			Majority: The Majority Bonus (2005-2013)	59
		D.	An Electoral Law Written by the Constitutional
			Court? (2014-2017)	60
	V.	Cor	nclusion	65
	Furth	her R	leading	67
4.			nt
			oduction
			e Italian Parliament in the Constitution
			ymmetrical Bicameralism	70
	IV.		e Internal Organisation of the Chamber and Senate
			vileges and Immunities of MPs
	VI.	Parl	liamentary Rules of Procedure	80
			e Legislative Process
	VIII.	The	Budgetary Process	86

I. Introduction	Further Reading       91         5. The Government: Between Politics and Administration       92         I. Introduction       92         II. The Structure of the Government       93         A. The Essential Bodies       93         B. The Non-essential Bodies       93         B. The Non-essential Bodies       96         C. Members of the Government, Members of       98         III. The Confidence Relationship with the Two Houses       98         A. The Motion of Confidence       99         B. The Motion of No Confidence       100         C. The Motion of No Confidence in a Single Minister       100         D. The Question of Confidence       102         IV. The Primary and Secondary Normative Powers of the       104         Government       104         A. Decree-laws       105         B. Legislative Decrees       108         C. Regulations       111         V. The Distinction between Politics and Administration       112         VI. The Constitutional Principles on Public Administration       114         VII. Conclusion       116         Further Reading       120         6. The President of the Republic       121         I. Introduction       121         I.		IX.	The Oversight Function	88
5. The Government: Between Politics and Administration       92         I. Introduction       92         II. The Structure of the Government       93         A. The Essential Bodies       93         B. The Non-essential Bodies       96         C. Members of the Government, Members of Parliament       98         III. The Confidence Relationship with the Two Houses of Parliament       98         A. The Motion of Confidence       99         B. The Motion of No Confidence       100         C. The Motion of No Confidence in a Single Minister       100         D. The Question of Confidence       102         IV. The Primary and Secondary Normative Powers of the Government       104         A. Decree-laws       105         B. Legislative Decrees       108         C. Regulations       111         V. The Distinction between Politics and Administration       112         VI. The Constitutional Principles on Public Administration       114         VII. The Auxiliary Bodies and the Independent Authorities       116         VIII. Conclusion       118         Further Reading       120         6. The President of the Republic       121         I. Introduction       121         I. Election, Term of Office and Substitution       122 <td>5. The Government: Between Politics and Administration       92         I. Introduction       92         II. The Structure of the Government       93         A. The Essential Bodies       93         B. The Non-essential Bodies       96         C. Members of the Government, Members of Parliament       98         III. The Confidence Relationship with the Two Houses of Parliament       98         A. The Motion of Confidence       99         B. The Motion of No Confidence       100         C. The Motion of No Confidence       100         D. The Question of Confidence       102         IV. The Primary and Secondary Normative Powers of the Government       104         A. Decree-laws       105         B. Legislative Decrees       108         C. Regulations       111         V. The Distinction between Politics and Administration       112         VI. The Constitutional Principles on Public Administration       114         VII. The Auxiliary Bodies and the Independent Authorities       116         VIII. Conclusion       121         I. Introduction       122         II. The Responsibility of the President of the Republic       123         IV. The Counter-signature and the Classification of the Acts of the President of the Republic       124      &lt;</td> <td></td> <td>Х.</td> <td>Conclusion</td> <td>90</td>	5. The Government: Between Politics and Administration       92         I. Introduction       92         II. The Structure of the Government       93         A. The Essential Bodies       93         B. The Non-essential Bodies       96         C. Members of the Government, Members of Parliament       98         III. The Confidence Relationship with the Two Houses of Parliament       98         A. The Motion of Confidence       99         B. The Motion of No Confidence       100         C. The Motion of No Confidence       100         D. The Question of Confidence       102         IV. The Primary and Secondary Normative Powers of the Government       104         A. Decree-laws       105         B. Legislative Decrees       108         C. Regulations       111         V. The Distinction between Politics and Administration       112         VI. The Constitutional Principles on Public Administration       114         VII. The Auxiliary Bodies and the Independent Authorities       116         VIII. Conclusion       121         I. Introduction       122         II. The Responsibility of the President of the Republic       123         IV. The Counter-signature and the Classification of the Acts of the President of the Republic       124      <		Х.	Conclusion	90
I. Introduction	I. Introduction       92         II. The Structure of the Government       93         A. The Essential Bodies       93         B. The Non-essential Bodies       93         B. The Non-essential Bodies       96         C. Members of the Government, Members of       97         Parliament       98         III. The Confidence Relationship with the Two Houses       97         A. The Motion of Confidence       99         B. The Motion of No Confidence       100         C. The Motion of No Confidence in a Single Minister       100         D. The Question of Confidence       100         D. The Question of Confidence       102         IV. The Primary and Secondary Normative Powers of the       102         Government       104         A. Decree-laws       105         B. Legislative Decrees       108         C. Regulations       111         V. The Distinction between Politics and Administration       112         VI. The Constitutional Principles on Public Administration       114         VII. Conclusion       116         VIII. Conclusion       121         I. Introduction       122         II. The Responsibility of the President of the Republic       122         III. Th		Furth	ner Reading	9 1
I. Introduction	I. Introduction       92         II. The Structure of the Government       93         A. The Essential Bodies       93         B. The Non-essential Bodies       93         B. The Non-essential Bodies       96         C. Members of the Government, Members of       97         Parliament       98         III. The Confidence Relationship with the Two Houses       97         A. The Motion of Confidence       99         B. The Motion of No Confidence       100         C. The Motion of No Confidence in a Single Minister       100         D. The Question of Confidence       100         D. The Question of Confidence       102         IV. The Primary and Secondary Normative Powers of the       102         Government       104         A. Decree-laws       105         B. Legislative Decrees       108         C. Regulations       111         V. The Distinction between Politics and Administration       112         VI. The Constitutional Principles on Public Administration       114         VII. Conclusion       116         VIII. Conclusion       121         I. Introduction       122         II. The Responsibility of the President of the Republic       122         III. Th
II. The Structure of the Government       93         A. The Essential Bodies       93         B. The Non-essential Bodies       96         C. Members of the Government, Members of Parliament       98         III. The Confidence Relationship with the Two Houses of Parliament       98         A. The Motion of Confidence       99         B. The Motion of No Confidence       99         B. The Motion of No Confidence in a Single Minister       100         C. The Motion of No Confidence in a Single Minister       100         D. The Question of Confidence       102         IV. The Primary and Secondary Normative Powers of the Government       104         A. Decree-laws       105         B. Legislative Decrees       108         C. Regulations       111         V. The Distinction between Politics and Administration       112         VI. The Constitutional Principles on Public Administration       114         VII. The Auxiliary Bodies and the Independent Authorities       116         VIII. Conclusion       121         I. Introduction       121         I. Introduction       121         I. Hersident of the Republic       122         III. The Responsibility of the President of the Republic       123	II. The Structure of the Government       93         A. The Essential Bodies       93         B. The Non-essential Bodies       96         C. Members of the Government, Members of       97         Parliament       98         III. The Confidence Relationship with the Two Houses       98         A. The Motion of Confidence       99         B. The Motion of No Confidence       100         C. The Motion of No Confidence in a Single Minister       100         D. The Question of Confidence in a Single Minister       100         D. The Question of Confidence       102         IV. The Primary and Secondary Normative Powers of the       104         Government       104         A. Decree-laws       105         B. Legislative Decrees       108         C. Regulations       111         V. The Distinction between Politics and Administration       112         VI. The Constitutional Principles on Public Administration       114         VII. Conclusion       116         VIII. Conclusion       121         I. Introduction       122         II. The Responsibility of the President of the Republic       122         III. The Responsibility of the President of the Republic       124         I. Election, Term of Off	5.
A. The Essential Bodies       93         B. The Non-essential Bodies       96         C. Members of the Government, Members of Parliament       98         III. The Confidence Relationship with the Two Houses of Parliament       98         A. The Motion of Confidence       99         B. The Motion of No Confidence       100         C. The Motion of No Confidence in a Single Minister       100         D. The Question of Confidence       102         IV. The Primary and Secondary Normative Powers of the Government       104         A. Decree-laws       105         B. Legislative Decrees       108         C. Regulations       111         V. The Distinction between Politics and Administration       112         VI. The Constitutional Principles on Public Administration       114         VII. Conclusion       118         Further Reading       120         6. The President of the Republic       121         I. Introduction       121         I. Election, Term of Office and Substitution       122         III. The Responsibility of the President of the Republic       123	A. The Essential Bodies       93         B. The Non-essential Bodies       96         C. Members of the Government, Members of       98         III. The Confidence Relationship with the Two Houses       98         A. The Motion of Confidence       99         B. The Motion of No Confidence       100         C. The Motion of No Confidence in a Single Minister       100         D. The Question of Confidence       102         IV. The Primary and Secondary Normative Powers of the       104         Government       104         A. Decree-laws       105         B. Legislative Decrees       108         C. Regulations       111         V. The Distinction between Politics and Administration       112         VI. The Constitutional Principles on Public Administration       114         VII. Conclusion       116         Further Reading       120         6. The President of the Republic       121         I. Introduction       122         IV. The Counter-signature and the Classification of the       122         Acts of the President of the Republic       122         IV. The Counter-signature and the Classification of the       124         Acts of the President of the Republic       126         A. Formally P
B. The Non-essential Bodies	B. The Non-essential Bodies		II.
<ul> <li>C. Members of the Government, Members of Parliament</li></ul>	<ul> <li>C. Members of the Government, Members of Parliament</li></ul>
Parliament	Parliament       98         III. The Confidence Relationship with the Two Houses of Parliament       98         A. The Motion of Confidence       99         B. The Motion of No Confidence in a Single Minister       100         C. The Motion of No Confidence in a Single Minister       100         D. The Question of Confidence       102         IV. The Primary and Secondary Normative Powers of the Government       104         A. Decree-laws       105         B. Legislative Decrees       108         C. Regulations       111         V. The Distinction between Politics and Administration       112         VI. The Constitutional Principles on Public Administration       114         VII. The Auxiliary Bodies and the Independent Authorities       116         VIII. Conclusion       118         Further Reading       120         II. Introduction       121         I. Introduction       122         III. The Responsibility of the President of the Republic       123         IV. The Counter-signature and the Classification of the Acts of the President of the Republic       124         A. Formally Presidential, but Substantively       Governmental, Acts       127         B. Fully (Both Formally and Substantively)       Presidential Acts       125				96
III. The Confidence Relationship with the Two Houses of Parliament	III. The Confidence Relationship with the Two Houses of Parliament       98         A. The Motion of Confidence.       99         B. The Motion of No Confidence in a Single Minister       100         C. The Motion of No Confidence in a Single Minister       100         D. The Question of Confidence       102         IV. The Primary and Secondary Normative Powers of the Government       104         A. Decree-laws       105         B. Legislative Decrees       108         C. Regulations       111         V. The Distinction between Politics and Administration       112         VI. The Constitutional Principles on Public Administration       114         VIII. Conclusion       116         VIII. Conclusion       117         III. The Auxiliary Bodies and the Independent Authorities       116         VIII. Conclusion       118         Further Reading       120         6. The President of the Republic       121         I. Introduction       122         III. The Responsibility of the President of the Republic       123         IV. The Counter-signature and the Classification of the Acts of the President of the Republic       126         A. Formally Presidential, but Substantively Governmental, Acts       127         B. Fully (Both Formally and Substantively)			C. Members of the Government, Members of
of Parliament	of Parliament       98         A. The Motion of Confidence.       99         B. The Motion of No Confidence in a Single Minister       100         C. The Motion of No Confidence in a Single Minister       100         D. The Question of Confidence			Parliament	98
A. The Motion of Confidence	A. The Motion of Confidence		Ш.	The Confidence Relationship with the Two Houses
B. The Motion of No Confidence       100         C. The Motion of No Confidence in a Single Minister       100         D. The Question of Confidence       102         IV. The Primary and Secondary Normative Powers of the Government       104         A. Decree-laws       105         B. Legislative Decrees       108         C. Regulations       111         V. The Distinction between Politics and Administration       112         VI. The Constitutional Principles on Public Administration       116         VIII. Conclusion       118         Further Reading       120         6. The President of the Republic       121         I. Introduction       121         II. Election, Term of Office and Substitution       122         III. The Responsibility of the President of the Republic       123	B. The Motion of No Confidence
<ul> <li>C. The Motion of No Confidence in a Single Minister 100</li> <li>D. The Question of Confidence</li></ul>	<ul> <li>C. The Motion of No Confidence in a Single Minister</li></ul>			A. The Motion of Confidence	99
D.       The Question of Confidence       102         IV.       The Primary and Secondary Normative Powers of the       104         Government       104         A.       Decree-laws       105         B.       Legislative Decrees       108         C.       Regulations       111         V.       The Distinction between Politics and Administration       112         VI.       The Constitutional Principles on Public Administration       114         VII.       The Auxiliary Bodies and the Independent Authorities       116         VIII.       Conclusion       118         Further Reading       120         6.       The President of the Republic       121         I.       Introduction       121         II.       Election, Term of Office and Substitution       122         III.       The Responsibility of the President of the Republic       123	D.The Question of Confidence			B. The Motion of No Confidence	100
D.       The Question of Confidence       102         IV.       The Primary and Secondary Normative Powers of the       104         Government       104         A.       Decree-laws       105         B.       Legislative Decrees       108         C.       Regulations       111         V.       The Distinction between Politics and Administration       112         VI.       The Constitutional Principles on Public Administration       114         VII.       The Auxiliary Bodies and the Independent Authorities       116         VIII.       Conclusion       118         Further Reading       120         6.       The President of the Republic       121         I.       Introduction       121         II.       Election, Term of Office and Substitution       122         III.       The Responsibility of the President of the Republic       123	D.The Question of Confidence			C. The Motion of No Confidence in a Single Minister.	100
Government       104         A. Decree-laws       105         B. Legislative Decrees       108         C. Regulations       111         V. The Distinction between Politics and Administration       112         VI. The Constitutional Principles on Public Administration       114         VII. The Auxiliary Bodies and the Independent Authorities       116         VIII. Conclusion       118         Further Reading       120         6. The President of the Republic       121         I. Introduction       121         II. Election, Term of Office and Substitution       122         III. The Responsibility of the President of the Republic       123	Government104A.Decree-laws105B.Legislative Decrees108C.Regulations111V.The Distinction between Politics and Administration112VI.The Constitutional Principles on Public Administration114VII.The Auxiliary Bodies and the Independent Authorities116VIII.Conclusion118Further Reading1206.The President of the Republic121I.Introduction121II.Election, Term of Office and Substitution122III.The Responsibility of the President of the Republic123IV.The Counter-signature and the Classification of the Acts of the President of the Republic126A.Formally Presidential, but Substantively Governmental, Acts127B.Fully (Both Formally and Substantively) Presidential Acts125
A. Decree-laws       105         B. Legislative Decrees       108         C. Regulations       111         V. The Distinction between Politics and Administration       112         VI. The Constitutional Principles on Public Administration       114         VII. The Auxiliary Bodies and the Independent Authorities       116         VIII. Conclusion       118         Further Reading       120         6. The President of the Republic       121         I. Introduction       121         II. Election, Term of Office and Substitution       122         III. The Responsibility of the President of the Republic       123	A. Decree-laws105B. Legislative Decrees108C. Regulations111V. The Distinction between Politics and Administration112VI. The Constitutional Principles on Public Administration114VII. The Auxiliary Bodies and the Independent Authorities116VIII. Conclusion118Further Reading1206. The President of the Republic121I. Introduction121II. Election, Term of Office and Substitution122III. The Responsibility of the President of the Republic123IV. The Counter-signature and the Classification of the Acts of the President of the Republic126A. Formally Presidential, but Substantively Governmental, Acts127B. Fully (Both Formally and Substantively) Presidential Acts125		IV.	The Primary and Secondary Normative Powers of the
B. Legislative Decrees       108         C. Regulations       111         V. The Distinction between Politics and Administration       112         VI. The Constitutional Principles on Public Administration       114         VII. The Auxiliary Bodies and the Independent Authorities       116         VIII. Conclusion       118         Further Reading       120         6. The President of the Republic       121         I. Introduction       121         II. Election, Term of Office and Substitution       122         III. The Responsibility of the President of the Republic       123	B.       Legislative Decrees       108         C.       Regulations       111         V.       The Distinction between Politics and Administration       112         VI.       The Constitutional Principles on Public Administration       114         VII.       The Constitutional Principles on Public Administration       114         VII.       The Constitutional Principles on Public Administration       114         VII.       The Auxiliary Bodies and the Independent Authorities       116         VIII.       Conclusion       118         Further Reading       120         6.       The President of the Republic       121         I.       Introduction       121         I.       Introduction       122         III.       Election, Term of Office and Substitution       122         III.       The Responsibility of the President of the Republic       123         IV.       The Counter-signature and the Classification of the       126         A.       Formally Presidential, but Substantively       126         B.       Fully (Both Formally and Substantively)       127         B.       Fully (Both Formally and Substantively)       125			Government	104
C. Regulations	C. Regulations			A. Decree-laws	105
<ul> <li>V. The Distinction between Politics and Administration</li></ul>	<ul> <li>V. The Distinction between Politics and Administration</li></ul>			B. Legislative Decrees	108
<ul> <li>VI. The Constitutional Principles on Public Administration 114</li> <li>VII. The Auxiliary Bodies and the Independent Authorities 116</li> <li>VIII. Conclusion</li></ul>	VI. The Constitutional Principles on Public Administration
<ul> <li>VII. The Auxiliary Bodies and the Independent Authorities 116</li> <li>VIII. Conclusion</li></ul>	VII. The Auxiliary Bodies and the Independent Authorities       116         VIII. Conclusion       118         Further Reading       120         6. The President of the Republic       121         I. Introduction       121         II. Election, Term of Office and Substitution       122         III. The Responsibility of the President of the Republic       123         IV. The Counter-signature and the Classification of the       126         A. Formally Presidential, but Substantively       126         B. Fully (Both Formally and Substantively)       127         B. Fully (Both Formally and Substantively)       126		V.	The Distinction between Politics and Administration	112
<ul> <li>VII. The Auxiliary Bodies and the Independent Authorities 116</li> <li>VIII. Conclusion</li></ul>	VII. The Auxiliary Bodies and the Independent Authorities       116         VIII. Conclusion       118         Further Reading       120         6. The President of the Republic       121         I. Introduction       121         II. Election, Term of Office and Substitution       122         III. The Responsibility of the President of the Republic       123         IV. The Counter-signature and the Classification of the       126         A. Formally Presidential, but Substantively       126         B. Fully (Both Formally and Substantively)       127         B. Fully (Both Formally and Substantively)       126		VI.	The Constitutional Principles on Public Administration.	114
VIII. Conclusion	VIII. Conclusion
<ul> <li>6. The President of the Republic</li></ul>	<ul> <li>6. The President of the Republic</li></ul>			· •
I. Introduction	I. Introduction		Furt	ner Reading	120
I. Introduction	I. Introduction			C
I. Introduction	I. Introduction	6.	The	President of the Republic	121
II. Election, Term of Office and Substitution	<ul> <li>II. Election, Term of Office and Substitution</li></ul>
III. The Responsibility of the President of the Republic	<ul> <li>III. The Responsibility of the President of the Republic</li></ul>
	<ul> <li>IV. The Counter-signature and the Classification of the Acts of the President of the Republic</li></ul>
IV. The Counter-signature and the Classification of the	<ul> <li>Acts of the President of the Republic</li></ul>
	<ul> <li>A. Formally Presidential, but Substantively Governmental, Acts</li></ul>		126
	Governmental, Acts
	B. Fully (Both Formally and Substantively) Presidential Acts125				127
	Presidential Acts 129
					. 129
	. Complex (of Duary roots, appointment of the
	Government and Dissolution of the Parliament				131

	V.	The Shaping of the Role of the President of the Republic
		Throughout the Constitutional Experience
	VI.	Conclusion
	Furth	ner Reading138
7.		onal and Local Government139
		Introduction139
		Origins and Evolution of the 'Republic of Autonomies' 141
	III.	The Constitutional Framework and its Delayed
		Implementation144
	IV.	Special and Ordinary Regions146
	V.	The Direct Election of the Presidents of the Regions
		and Statutory Autonomy149
	VI.	The Distribution of Legislative Competences between the State and Regions150
	VII.	Administrative Autonomy and the Principles of Subsidiarity and Loyal Cooperation154
	VIII.	Financial Autonomy158
	IX.	Local Authorities160
	Х.	Conclusion162
	Furth	ner Reading
8.	The	Judiciary
		Introduction164
	II.	The Evolution of the Judicial Function 165
	III.	The Separation of Powers and Judicial Independence 168
		A. External Independence: The High Council of the Judiciary
		B. Internal Independence: Appointment, Tenure and Absence of Hierarchy172
	IV.	The Organisation of the Judiciary 176
		A. The Principle of Unity of Jurisdiction and Special Judges 176
		B. Administrative Courts: A Dual System
		C. Judges and Public Prosecutors
	V.	Judicial Responsibility
		Conclusion
		er Reading

9.	The	Constitutional Court	186
	I.	Introduction	186
	II.	Historical Background	187
	III.	The European Model of Constitutional Adjudication	189
	IV.	The Constitutional Court: Composition and Functions.	190
		A. Special Judge	190
		B. Specialised Body	192
		C. Centralised Body	192
	V.	The Court's Delayed Establishment and First
		Years of Activity: Reviewing Fascist Legislation	193
	VI.	A Variety of Remedies	 196
	VII.	The Incidental Procedure and the Relationship with Ordinary Courts
	VIII.	The Constitutional Court and European Courts	202
	IX.	The Relational Character of Italian Constitutional
		Adjudication and Internal Collegiality	205
	Х.	Conclusion	207
	Furth	ner Reading	208
10	Deat	ection of Rights	200
10.		Introduction
		The Evolution of Constitutionalism and the
	11.	'Age of Rights'	210
	III	Inviolable Rights
		The Italian Approach to Fundamental Rights:
	1 V.	Personalism, Pluralism and Solidarity	214
	v	Codified Rights and New Rights
		Limiting Rights
		Judicial and Non-judicial Safeguards
		Key Rights
	v 111.
		0
		B. Freedom of Religion
	īV	C. Social Rights
		Conclusion
	Furti	ner Reading	244
Inc	lex		245