Contents

Acknowledgements v
List of contributors vii

Introduction ix
Tesse D. Stek and André Carneiro

I. Contested landscapes: between pre-Roman polities and early Roman encroachment 1

1. Exploring Rome's early military deployment strategies in the north-east of the Iberian Peninsula 3
Jordi Principal and Carles Padrós Gómez

2. Late Iron Age and early Roman conflict and interaction in southern Callaecia (north-west Iberia) 27
João Fonte

3. Towers, territory, and the negotiation of a colonial landscape in the early Roman Central Alentejo 47
Joey Williams, Rui Mataloto, and Karilyn Sheldon

4. The last frontier: Late Iron Age society, Roman conquest, and the Romanisation of the territory north of the River Duero 68
Jesús García Sánchez

II. Economic targets: integrating and energising resources 85

5. Upgrading town appearances: relating white marble exploitation and town development in Roman Lusitania 87
Devi Taelman

6. Shifting landscapes: change and adaptation in the Lusitanian territory during the first globalisation 110
André Carneiro

7. Adding complexity to a complex world: the role of tableware imports in Portugal during the 2nd and 1st centuries BC 125
Vincenzo Soria

III. Cities and hillforts: settlement organisation in the Roman west 147

8. Land-use and settlement patterns around Ercavica in Antiquity: initial findings 149
Miguel Ángel Valero Tévar

9. Understanding the town-territory relationship: a case study from Lusitania 174
Cristina Corsi

10. Why would we need a city? The dispersed civitates in Lusitania 205
Pieter Houten

11. Roman rural life in the far west: the case study of the Serena Region (Badajoz, Spain) 221
Victorino Mayoral Herrera, Martina Cecilia Parini, and Luis Sevillano Perea

IV. Local religious and cultural identity 239

12. The role of cult places in shaping landscapes during the Roman expansion: an Iberian perspective on a Mediterranean process 241
Ignasi Grau Mira

13. Men, women, children, animals: the votive statuary from the sanctuary of Endovellicus at São Miguel da Mota/Alandroal (Portugal) 257
Thomas G. Schattner

14. Romanising the mountains? Exploring cultural change through archaeological spatial analysis in western Sierra Morena (Spain) 274
Maria del Carmen Moreno Escobar

15. Oppida and public spaces: constructing identities in Late Iron Age and early Roman north-west Iberia 297
Manuel Fernández-Götz and Marco V. García Quintela

16. Funerary practices and material culture: a 'portrait from life' in the fields of Lusitania 314
Mónica Rolo