

Contents

Series Preface	vii
List of Abbreviations	viii
List of Contributors	xi
1. The role of functional heads in syntactic change Barbara Egedi and Veronika Hegedűs	1
2. Changing patterns of clausal complementation in Latin: A parametric approach to 'constructional' changes Lieven Danckaert	19
3. From split to remerged Fin in Romanian supine complements Adina Dragomirescu and Virginia Hill	56
4. The diachronic path of senão : From conditional subordination to exceptive coordination Ana Maria Martins, Sandra Pereira, and Clara Pinto	70
5. On Italian relative complementizers and relative pronouns: Rethinking grammaticalization Emanuela Sanfelici, Jacopo Garzonio, and Cecilia Poletto	90
6. Information structure, functional left peripheries, and the history of a Hungarian interrogative marker Julia Bacskai-Atkari	111
7. The recategorization of modals in English: Evidence from adverb placement Eric Haeberli and Tabea Ihsane	136
8. Tense recursion, perfect doubling, and the grammaticalization of auxiliaries Ida Larsson and Ellen Brandner	159
9. P-incorporation in the history of Icelandic Jóhannes Gísli Jónsson and Brynhildur Stefánsdóttir	186

10. From Old to Modern Icelandic: Dative applicatives and NP/DP configurationality Heimir F. Viðarsson	210
References	247
Index of Subjects	271
Index of Languages	283