

CONTENTS

|  |           |
|--|-----------|
| Preface  | ix        |
| 1 Introduction  | 1  |
| ERIC AVILA AND THAÏSA WAY  |           |
| I. LANDSCAPES OF SEGREGATION: INTENTIONS AND RATIONALES                   |           |
| 2 Developing Spaces of Exclusion  | 23 |
| PAIGE GLOTZER  |           |
| 3 Quarantine, Eradication, and Prescription                               |           |
| How Health Segregated the American Urban Landscape                               | 47        |
| SARA JENSEN CARR   |           |
| 4 Open Land for Whom?   |           |
| Racial Segregation and Chicago's Urban Environment                               | 75        |
| BRIAN MCCAMMACK  |           |
| 5 Painting Race in Space  |           |
| Racialized Landscapes and the Construction of Peripheral Territories in Colombia | 107       |
| ZANNAH MAE MATSON  |           |
| II. SEGREGATION AS DISCURSIVE PROJECT                                     |           |
| 6 Following the Cement Supply Chain                                       |           |
| Land Use and Racial Capitalism in the Lehigh Valley                              | 139       |
| VYTA PIVO  |           |
| 7 Where Was Jim Crow?   |           |
| Frank Lloyd Wright, Broadacre City, and the All-White American Suburb            | 161       |
| DIANNE HARRIS  |           |
| 8 A Landscape of Dissonance   |           |
| Erasing Blackness in Suburban Appalachia   | 183       |
| SHARÓNE L. TOMER   |           |

|      |   |     |
|------|---|-----|
| 9    | Making “A Waterfront for the World”  |     |
|      | Racial Capitalism, Indigeneity, and the Marketing of Zibi in Canada’s Capital    | 213 |
|      | HEATHER DORRIES   |     |
|  |   |     |
| III. | COUNTERNARRATIVES AND RESISTANCE   |     |
| 10   | Communal Gardens, Defensive Design, and Urban Apartheid in Chinatown             |     |
|      | Merced, California, 1870–1910   | 235 |
|      | DAVID ROUFF AND VERENIZE ARCEO  |     |
| 11   | Urban Markets, Rural Slums   |     |
|      | Segregation and Resistance in California’s “Unincorporated” Landscape                   | 263 |
|      | ALISON B. HIRSCH  |     |
| 12   | The Hallowed Grounds Tour  |     |
|      | Revising and Reimagining Landscapes of Race and Slavery at the University of Alabama    | 297 |
|      | HILARY GREEN  |     |
| 13   | From Plantation to Museum  |     |
|      | The Whitney Plantation (Habitation Haydel) of the German Coast of Louisiana (1750–1860) | 325 |
|      | IBRAHIMA SECK   |     |
| 14   | “Monticello Is a Black Space”  |     |
|      | The Getting Word Project and the Future of African American History at Monticello       | 347 |
|      | NIYA BATES  |     |
|      | Contributors  | 375 |
|      | Index   | 381 |