

Christine R. Trotter explores how ancient Jews and the earliest Christians attempted to comfort people who had endured or witnessed persecution and violence, illustrating the nature of intercultural encounter between Jews, Greeks, Romans, and Christians regarding how to alleviate grief and cultivate joy.