

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Preface	xi
Zélia M. Bora, Animesh Roy, and Ricardo de la Fuente Ballesteros
Introduction: Narratives of Pandemic: Literature, Culture, and Environment—An Ibero-American Perspective	1
Zélia M. Bora, Animesh Roy, and Ricardo de la Fuente Ballesteros
PART I	23
Chapter One: Tuberculosis and Melancholy in the Work of Gustavo Adolfo Bécquer	25
Juan Pascual Gay and Mercedes Pascual Zavala
Chapter Two: The Turn of the Century and the Spanish Imaginary Facing the Disease: The Case of Ganivet	41
Ricardo de la Fuente Ballesteros and Juan R. Coca
Chapter Three: The Language of a Sick Nation: Epidemics and Environmental Destruction in the Narratives of Lima Barreto	61
Zélia M. Bora
PART II	75
Chapter Four: Guatemalan Expressions: Memorials and Private Reflective Spaces during the Internal Conflict and COVID-19 Pandemic	77
Martha C. Galván-Mandujano

Chapter Five: Between Life and Death: Practices of Healing of the Ecuadorian Siona Nationality as a Political Spirituality María Fernanda Solórzano Granada	97
Chapter Six: Now That We Are Back to School . . . Pandemic, Environment, and Community Links Norma Georgina Gutiérrez Serrano	113
Chapter Seven: Chronicle of Life during the COVID-19 Pandemic in Mexico Georgina Vega Fregoso	133
Chapter Eight: Afro-Brazilians and COVID-19: Revisiting the Concepts of Necropolitics and Genocide Siddharth Singh Monteiro Bora and Evely Vânia Libanori	159
Chapter Nine: Language and Pandemics: Uses and Effects of WhatsApp—Students and Teacher under Isolation Juarez Nogueira Lins	173
Chapter Ten: The COVID-19 Pandemic and Agency for a New Environmental Ethic Maria Geralda de Miranda and Bruno Matos de Farias	185
Chapter Eleven: Biopolitics and Environmental Governance in the Time of the New Coronavirus Pandemic Marcus Alexandre Cavalcanti and Kátia Eilane Santos Avelar	203
Index	219
About the Contributors	221