
*“The evil that men do lives after them, The good is oft interred with their bones’.
This in the case of the Rev. John Thomas Clarke will be reversed, for the good that he did at St Mark’s will live for ever,
and time itself will not obliterate it.”*
William Harrison, 1878¹

Contents

Clarke and Petit – History and Justice	5
Clarke’s Transformation of St. Mark’s	7
Architectural Character and Petit	13
John Thomas Clarke, The Builder Priest	19
A Second Life in Wales	25
Of Glass and Brass	31
John Louis Petit, A Singular Artist	35
List of Pictures, Notes and Acknowledgements	42, 43, 44