

Table of Contents

Foreword	IX
Acknowledgments	XI
Technical Note	XIII
Introduction	XV
Overview of the Book	XLI
1. Mongolia	1
1.1 The Story of the Six False Teachers	1
1.2 The White History of the Mongols	11
1.3 The Meeting on the Shore of the Blue Lake	14
1.4 The Deeds That Were Black	18
1.5 ‘After They Have Cast Away Their Ongons ’	24
1.6 The Views That Were False	32
1.7 The Black Religion	41
1.8 Buddhist Rules as Laws, or Heading for Transbaikalia	44
2. Transbaikalia	50
2.1 The Subjugation of Siberia: the Cossack’s Gun and the Scholar’s “Right” Eye	50
2.2 The Story of the 150 Lamas	70
2.3 Shamanstvo in Transbaikalia	79
2.4 Bureaucratic Enlightenment Reaches Siberia – Mikhail Speranskij	90
2.5 Speranskij’s Reforms and Buryat Legislative Initiatives	95
2.6 Closing the “Window on the West” – Nicholas I	102
2.7 Gendarmes, Police and the Orthodox Church – the Tsar’s Eyes in Siberia	109
2.8 The Invisible Subjects	119
3. Aga	126
3.1 Prologue	126
3.2 Pre-historic pre-Buddhist Aga According to Tobayin	127
3.3 The Yellow and Black Communities of Tsügel Datsan	129
3.4 Lama Tübten and Deputy Delger	134
3.5 ‘Those böge udagan do not need the yellow religion’	142
3.6 The Law of the Fathers and Forefathers	145

3.7	The Bandido Khambo Lama and the Law of the Emperor	153
3.8	Guilt	163
3.9	Epilogue	171
4.	The Religion of the Shamans	174
4.1	The Story of the Black Bear	174
4.2	Shamanstvo Comes Under the Tsar's Protection	176
4.3	Shamanstvo in Russian Academia – Dorzhi Banzarov and Others	180
4.4	The Buddhists and the Other Buryats	188
4.5	The Khuduri Buryats	194
4.6	The Stubborn taisha and the Desperate Missionaries	197
4.7	The Religion of the Shamans in Buryat Historiography	214
4.8	'Their Deeds Cannot be Considered a Religion'	220
4.9	'Have You Seen Any Russians There?'	226
	Conclusion	229
	Bibliography	234
	Index	252