

Contents

Table of Cases	ix
Table of Acts, Treaties, and Other Instruments	xi
List of Figures and Tables	xiv
List of Acronyms	xv
Notes on Contributors	xviii
Acknowledgements	xxiii
Foreword: Against ‘Newness’	xxiv
Joel Quirk
1 Introduction: The Interdisciplinary Kaleidoscope and Creation of Modern Slavery in Global Context	1
Elizabeth A. Faulkner
Introduction	1
Modern slavery in global context: overview	3
Modern slavery: rage against the machine	13
About the edited collection: the organizing logic	14
Conclusion: shifting the kaleidoscope	24
PART I Theoretical Perspectives
2 From Social to Legal: Shifting Approaches to Trafficking at the Turn of 20th-Century England	31
Laura Lammasniemi
Introduction	31
Section I: the shifting legal and social landscape of the mid-19th century	34
Section II: towards legal framework on anti-trafficking	39
Conclusion	47
3 The Coloniality of Modern Slavery in Latin America	53
Chris O’Connell
Introduction	53
Methodology: conducting fieldwork in Bolivia and Peru	55
Problematizing approaches to modern slavery	56

	Coloniality of power and modern slavery	60
	Decolonization and modern slavery in Bolivia	67
	Conclusion	73
4	Constructing ‘Indigenous People’ Reproducing Coloniality’s Epistemic Violence: A Content Analysis of the Trafficking in Persons Reports	81
	Avi Boukli, Georgios Papanicolaou and Eleni Dimou
	Introduction	81
	Coloniality and epistemic violence	83
	Coloniality and human trafficking	86
	Data and methods	88
	Coloniality of knowledge in the TIPRs: constructing the ‘Indigenous victim’ of human trafficking	92
	Conclusion	102
PART II Structural Issues in Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking Practice
5	The Ethics of Research into Human Trafficking Beyond ‘Do No Harm’: Developing a ‘Living’ Ethical Protocol	113
	Patricia Hynes and Mike Dottridge
	Introduction	113
	Conceptual approaches: capturing the transnational and contextual nature of trafficking	116
	Conclusion	138
6	Governing through Indicators: Structural Biases and Empirical Challenges in Indicator-Based Approaches to Anti-Trafficking Policy, Practice, and Research	145
	Ieke de Vries and Ella Cockbain
	Introduction	145
	The aetiology of problem, risk, and performance indicators	147
	Indicators as the vocabulary of victimization within human trafficking discourse	150
	Empirical challenges in developing human trafficking indicators	154
	Problem frames and empirical challenges in the use of risk factors: the case of commercial sexual exploitation and trafficking of children in the US	157
	Implications for policy, interventions, and further research	159
	Conclusion	161

7	The Criminal Investigation of Human Trafficking Crimes in the UK: Benefits and Challenges of Police Collaboration During Police Investigations	168
	Laura Pajón
	Introduction	168
	Human trafficking: a complex crime	172
	The benefits and challenges of police collaboration in human trafficking investigations	180
	The practice of police collaboration to investigate human trafficking crimes	184
	Conclusion	186
 PART III Case Studies
8	Brexit-Precipitated or Free Movement-Facilitated? Labour Exploitation of EU Migrants in the UK	197
	Samantha Currie
	Introduction	197
	Brexit: a facilitator of labour exploitation	199
	Free movement as a facilitator of labour exploitation	201
	The aggravating impact of restrictive immigration policy	210
	Conclusion	213
9	The Modern Slavery Agenda in the UK: Labour Market Enforcement Perspectives on Law and Policy	220
	Amy Weatherburn
	Introduction	220
	Tackling labour market non-compliance: law and policy responses	222
	The paradox of a labour market enforcement perspective: the 'hostile environment' trumps labour market security	228
	Conclusion	233
10	Insights from Uganda: Wartime Sexual Violence, Knowledge Production, and Power	241
	Allen Kiconco
	Introduction	241
	'The field': power and feminist methodology	244
	Navigating risk, access, and collaboration	248
	"I cannot tell you everything": navigating ethics and in-depth interviews	254
	Conclusion	257

11	Beyond Victim-Centric Research: Participatory Action Research in a Trafficking ‘Hotspot’ of Nepal Ayushman Bhagat	261
	Introduction: reimagining the political epistemology of victim-centric anti-trafficking research	261
	Methodology, knowledge production, and unravelling power dynamics	267
	Conclusion	280
12	Saviours or Disrupters? The Role of Non-State Actors in the Government-Centric Realm of Anti-Trafficking in Belize Cherisse Francis	291
	Introduction	291
	The rise of NSAs	294
	Belize: the good, the bad, and the ugly	297
	Conclusion	311
	Index	323