

Contents

Contributors	vii
Abbreviations	x
Introduction: Global Governance in Context Steven C. Roach	1
Part I: Realpolitik and Rationalism
1. Embedded Realpolitik? Reevaluating United States' Opposition to the International Criminal Court Charles A. Smith and Heather M. Smith	29
2. From Realism to Legalization: A Rationalist Assessment of the International Criminal Court in the Democratic Republic of Congo Eric K. Leonard and Steven C. Roach	55
Part II: Constructivism, Legitimacy, and Accountability
3. Explaining the International Criminal Court: A Practice Test for Rationalist and Constructivist Approaches Caroline Fehl	75
4. The Politics of Discursive Legitimacy: Understanding the Dynamics and Implications of Prosecutorial Discretion at the International Criminal Court Michael J. Struett	107
5. Anarchy is What Criminal Lawyers and other Actors Make of it: International Criminal Justice as an Institution of International and World Society Jason Ralph	133

Part III: Cosmopolitanism and Global Order

6. Political Evil, Cosmopolitan Realism, and the Normative Ambivalence of the International Criminal Court Patrick Hayden	157
7. Four Cosmopolitan Projects: The International Criminal Court in Context Antonio Franceschet	179
8. The Cosmopolitan Test: Universal Morality and the Challenge of the Darfur Genocide Amy E. Eckert	205
9. Justice of the Peace? Future Challenges and Prospects for a Cosmopolitan Court Steven C. Roach	225
Bibliography	235
Index	265