

Table of Contents

|                       |    |
|-----------------------|----|
| List of Colour Plates | ix |
| Introductory Note     | xi |

1

The Aesthetic of the Strange

|                              |    |
|------------------------------|----|
| Not Beautiful, but Strange   | 1  |
| Not Sublime, but Strange     | 7  |
| The Aesthetic of the Strange | 11 |

2

The Strange Art and Literature of Modernism

|  |    |
|--|----|
| Radical Strangeness in Early Modernism | 19 |
|--|----|

|   |    |
|---|----|
| 1 ALTERNATIVE REALITIES PRESENTED IN UNUSUAL WAYS | 22 |
|---|----|

The Unfamiliar Metaphors of Expressionism; The Strange Objectivism of the Cubists; The Estranging Montage of the Heterogeneous in the Collage; The Wholesale Break with Tradition: Abstract Art; The Provocative Expansion of the Definition of Art: Dada and Ready-Mades; The Strange World of Surrealism; Stream of Consciousness

|   |   |    |
|---|---|----|
| 2 | THE WIDENING OF EXPERIENCE  | 43 |
|   | Experiments with Form and New Modes of Perception; The Need for Explanatory Theory   |    |
| 3 | THE UTOPIA OF RENEWAL   | 46 |
|   | The Renewal of Art; The Renewal of Literature  |    |
|   | Varieties of Strangeness in the Later Phase of Modernism  | 54 |
| 1 | THE INTENSIFICATION OF EARLY MODERNIST TENDENCIES IN ART  | 55 |
|   | Abstract Expressionism; The Elite Artistic Status of the Trivial; Kinetic Art and Op Art   |    |
| 2 | THE CONTINUATION AND INTENSIFICATION OF LITERARY CONCEPTS   | 62 |
|   | The Theatre of the Absurd and the 'nouveau roman'; German Followers of Brecht, Concrete Poetry, American Anti-Formalism of the Beat Generation |    |

3

The Strange Art and Literature of Postmodernism

|   |  |     |
|---|--|-----|
|   | New Radicalness in the Early Phase of Postmodernism  | 67  |
| 1 | THE RELATIVIZATION OF THE FAMILIAR   | 69  |
|   | Irony, Parody, Travesty; The Mixture of Styles and Genres; The Expansion of the Realm of Art and Literature   |     |
| 2 | THE CELEBRATION OF TRANSIENCE AND THE ARBITRARY  | 81  |
|   | The Shift From the Work to Process; The Construction of the Contingent and Arbitrary; The Reduction to Pure Possibility                                 |     |
| 3 | THE HORROR GAME  | 98  |
|   | The Strange as Subtle Difference   |     |
|   | in the Later Phase of Postmodernism  | 102 |
| 1 | VARIATION AND INTERTEXTUALITY  | 105 |
|   | "Neo" Art and the Post-Avantgarde; Realist Narrative Made Strange; The Return to Earlier Dramatic Genre Conventions; The Aesthetic of Subtle Difference |     |

|   |   |     |
|---|---|-----|
| 2 | RECOURSE TO THE NEW MEDIA AND FOREIGN CULTURES  | 115 |
|   | New Media and Foreign Cultures in Art; New Literary Utopias and Cultural Hybrids |     |
| 3 | THE COMPETITION OF THE SIMULTANEOUS   | 119 |

4

|  |     |
|--|-----|
| The Aesthetic of the Strange as the Aesthetic of Modernism and Postmodernism | 125 |
|--|-----|

5

|   |     |
|---|-----|
| Theoretical Foundations of the Aesthetic of the Strange | 133 |
|---|-----|

Disinterested Pleasure; Universal Pleasure and the Free Play of the Imagination; Aesthetic Processes; The Release of the Imagination Through Boundedness; The Beautiful, The Ugly, and the Alienating; Kant's "Aesthetic Ideas"; Beautiful Art, Nature, and Alienating Art; The Beautiful as a Symbol of the Morally Good and the Strangeness of Art as a Symbol of the Unstable Distinction Between Subject and 'World', Culture and 'Nature'

|             |     |
|-------------|-----|
| Works Cited | 165 |
|-------------|-----|