

Contents

LIST OF MAPS AND FIGURES	vii
ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS	ix
INTRODUCTION	1
Religion, Modernity, and the Reordering of Urban Space	4
Guangzhou and its Political and Cultural Setting	6
Sources and Structure of the Book	11
CHAPTER 1
Collapse of the Imperial Order	17
Introduction	17
State, Society, and Religion in Late Imperial Guangzhou	18
The Late Qing Reforms and the Revamping of the Religious Landscape	24
Superstition: A Modernist Discourse in the Making	27
The 1911 Revolution and the Measures against Religion	35
Conclusion	38
CHAPTER 2
Religion and State-making in the Early 1920s	41
Introduction	41
State-building, Urban Planning, and the Expropriation of Temples	42
Popular Resistance and the Triumph of the Nationalists	52
Changes in the Religious Landscape	58
Conclusion	64
CHAPTER 3
Politicizing Superstition and Remaking Urban Space	67
Introduction	67
A Modern State in Search of a Modern Society	68
Reordering the Urban Landscape: New Civic and Religious Space	72

Removal of the City God and Diviners	78
Nationalizing Religious Space: From Divine Power to Native Goods	83
Conclusion	90
CHAPTER 4
Refashioning Rituals and Festivals	93
Introduction	93
New Civic Rituals and the Solar Calendar	94
Remaking the Double Seventh Festival	100
Nationalizing the Hungry Ghost Festival	108
Conclusion	116
CHAPTER 5
Government and the Remaking of Religion in the 1930s	117
Introduction	117
Reusing Ancient Sages and the Making of a New Religion	118
Accommodating Buddhism in the New Political Culture	125
Witch-hunting and the “Purification” of Daoism	136
Conclusion	142
CONCLUSION
Negotiating Religion in Republican Chinese Cities	145
Notes	157
Bibliography	183
Index	201