

CONTENTS

|   |           |
|---|-----------|
| Acknowledgments  | viii      |
| 1 Introduction   | 1  |
| The Question at Princeton                                     | 1         |
| Von Balthasar and Beyond                                      | 3         |
| Answering Two Questions                                       | 8         |
| A New Starting Point  | 11        |
| 2 The Background to the Debate                         | 13 |
| Introduction  | 13        |
| Barth's Break with Liberalism                                 | 15        |
| 'The Righteousness of God'                                    | 17        |
| Romans I   | 21        |
| Romans II  | 26        |
| Przywara: Towards a Renewed Roman Catholic Church             | 31        |
| Towards the analogia entis                             | 34        |
| 'God as the Mystery of the World'                             | 38        |
| 'God in Us or Above Us?'                                      | 43        |
| A Stage Set for the Future                                    | 48        |
| 3 Incarnation and Analogy                              | 51 |
| Introduction  | 51        |
| Barth at Göttingen  | 52        |
| The Theology of Zwingli                                       | 54        |
| The Theology of the Reformed Confessions                      | 55        |
| The Göttingen Dogmatics                                       | 58        |
| Przywara's Religionsphilosophie katholischer Theologie | 63        |
| Przywara's Methodology  | 64        |
| The Problem of God in History                                 | 67        |
| The Analogy of Being as the Solution to the Problem           | 70        |
| Catholicism and History                                       | 80        |
| Two Competing yet Related Visions                             | 81        |

CONTENTS

|   |  |     |
|---|--|-----|
| 4 | The Nature of Barth's Rejection of the analogia entis            | 83  |
|   | Introduction   | 83  |
|   | Barth and Przywara in Münster  | 84  |
|   | Przywara's Visit to Barth's Seminar  | 87  |
|   | Barth's Initial Response: 'Fate and Idea in Theology'                          | 93  |
|   | Theology and Philosophy  | 94  |
|   | Barth against Realism  | 98  |
|   | Barth and Idealism   | 103 |
|   | Returning to Protestant Soil   | 106 |
|   | Barth's Second Response: 'The Holy Spirit and the Christian Life'              | 109 |
|   | To the Doctrine of God   | 113 |
|   | Barth's Rejection of the analogia entis                                 | 119 |
| 5 | Przywara's Analogia Entis and the 'Invention of the Anti-Christ' | 122 |
|   | Introduction   | 122 |
|   | The Prelude to Analogia Entis and the Preface to CD I/1                 | 123 |
|   | Przywara's Analogia Entis   | 127 |
|   | The Failure of Philosophy  | 128 |
|   | Two Modes of Knowledge   | 131 |
|   | The analogia entis as the Solution to Philosophy's Problems             | 135 |
|   | Philosophy, Theology, and Divine Revelation                                    | 142 |
|   | 'The Invention of the Anti-Christ'   | 150 |
| 6 | Barth's analogia fidei and Its Implications                      | 158 |
|   | Introduction   | 158 |
|   | Barth's analogia fidei  | 161 |
|   | Divine Revelation and the analogia entis                                | 162 |
|   | 'Capacity of the Incapable'  | 168 |
|   | Gottlieb Söhngen: ' analogia entis within the analogia fidei '   | 170 |
|   | Barth's Response to Söhngen  | 178 |
|   | Barth's Extrinsic Analogy of Attribution                                       | 182 |
|   | The Nature of Barth's Change with Regard to the analogia entis          | 189 |
| 7 | Analogy in Covenant   | 191 |
|   | Introduction   | 191 |
|   | Von Balthasar's Interpretation of Barth  | 193 |
|   | Barth's Mature Use of Analogy  | 201 |
|   | Creation and Covenant  | 202 |
|   | Barth's 'Bracket' and the Doctrine of Justification                            | 207 |
|   | Analogy in Relation  | 213 |
|   | The Culmination of Barth's Analogical Thinking                                 | 218 |
|   | Analogy as Vocation  | 224 |
|   | Analogy and the Church for the World   | 228 |

CONTENTS

|                     |     |
|---------------------|-----|
| 8 Conclusion | 231 |
| Bibliography | 236 |
| Index        | 243 |