

Contents

Notes on Contributors	vii
Acknowledgments	xi
Introduction: Population and Political Theory James S. Fishkin and Robert E. Goodin	1
1 Population and Ethics: Expanding the Moral Space Sissela Bok	5
2 Should We Value Population? John Broome	21
3 Regarding Optimum Population Partha Dasgupta	37
4 On Doing the Best for Our Children Derek Parfit	68
5 Shaping Future Children: Parental Rights and Societal Interests Dan W. Brock	81
6 On Future Generations' Future Rights Axel Gosseries	104
7 Justice between Adjacent Generations: Further Thoughts Norman Daniels	135

vi Contents

8	Generations at War or Sustainable Social Policy in Ageing Societies? Thomas Lindh, Bo Malmberg, and Joakim Palme	156
9	Dependency, Difference, and the Global Ethic of Longterm Care Eva Feder Kittay, with Bruce Jennings and Angela A. Wasunna	178
10	Live-in Domestic, Seasonal Workers, and Others Hard to Locate on the Map of Democracy Joseph H. Carens	206
11	Immigrants, Nations, and Citizenship David Miller	235
12	Justice in Migration: A Closed Borders Utopia? Lea Ypi	256
13	The Ethics of Refugee Policy Peter Singer and Renata Singer	285
	Index	305