

Contents

Acknowledgements VII

Introduction 1

- 1 Paul, Paul's Letters, and Contemporary Greco-Roman Literature of the Ancient Mediterranean 10
 - Introduction 10
 - My Approach: Textual Characteristics, Comparanda, and Socio-Literary Spheres 15
 - Grounding the Present Study: Literary Criteria, and Specific versus Abstract Content 23
 - Scholarship Characterizing Paul and Paul's Letters 27
 - Scholarship Characterizing the Broader Greco-Roman Literary Landscape 56
 - Ancient Mediterranean Comparanda: Authors and Texts 67
- 2 Rethinking Paul and Paul's Letters: Paul, Epictetus, and Philodemus in Context 72
 - A Brief Introduction to Epictetus and Philodemus 72
 - Textual Analysis and Comparison 77
 - Social Location: Paul, Philodemus, and Epictetus 79
- 3 How Do We Compare Literature? Re-Classifying Paul's Letters in a Socio-Literary Sphere 89
 - Introduction 89
 - An Introduction to Genre and Taxonomy 91
 - Genre, Taxonomy, and Modern Literary Theory 96
 - The Theoretical Turn I: Social Purpose 105
 - The Theoretical Turn II: Linguistic Anthropology, Metadiscursivity, and Metapragmatics 111
 - Conclusions 119
- 4 An Overview of the Data: Annotated Literary Criteria in Paul, Epictetus, Philodemus, and Other Pauline Comparanda 121
 - The Approach 123
 - The Criteria 124
 - Table of Contents for Literary Criteria 125

General Comments	141
An Introduction to the Data Sets	141
The Data: A Brief Discussion	146
Control Documents: Aelius Aristides' Panathenaic Oration , the Damascus Document , and Other Pauline Comparanda	152
Conclusions	166
5 Socio-Historical Implications of Textual Comparison: The Education and Lives of Paul, Epictetus, and Philodemus	170
Introduction	170
Paul's Letters, Literacy, and Education	176
Broader Implications: Education and Social Location	196
A Few Final Structural, Textual, and Abstract Considerations	211
Conclusion: Socio-Literary Spheres and Literary Classification in Biblical and Classical Studies	215
Review of Conclusions	215
Further Thoughts and Future Study	218
Appendix	221
Graphical Analysis: Paul's Letters and Comparanda	222
Distilled Data: Literary Sphere and Other Comparanda	230
Specific Textual Data: Paul, Epictetus, and Philodemus	235
Bibliography	247
Index of Terms	293
Index of Ancient Authors and Texts	305