

Contents

Aids for the Reader	xxi
CHAPTER 1. A Scribe in His Time and Place	1
1.1. Djeme and Western Thebes	3
1.2. Early Islamic Egypt	7
1.3. The Use of Coptic in Early Islamic Egypt	9
1.4. Scribes and Writers	14
CHAPTER 2. Building Aristophanes' Dossier	22
2.1. Assigning Texts to Aristophanes	22
2.2. Amanuensis and Witness	32
2.3. Composition of the Dossier	37
2.4. Establishing Dates	39
2.5. Between Dossier and Archive	57
CHAPTER 3. Putting Pen on Papyrus: Scribal Practices and Processes	67
3.1. Aristophanes' Writing Style	68
3.2. Correcting the Results of Old Age	70
3.3. What's in a Signature?	76
3.4. Many Writers at Hand	80
3.5. More than the Sum of His Words	88
CHAPTER 4. Recording Taxes	89
4.1. A Communal and Personal Burden	90
4.2. Recording Individual Tax Payments	99
4.3. A Team Effort	107

4.4. Collection and Storage	114
4.5. No Taxes, No Travel	118
4.6. The Importance of Scribes	123
CHAPTER 5. Recording Private Lives	125
5.1. Domestic Structures	125
5.2. Isolated Cases	128
5.3. Aaron Son of Shenoute	135
5.4. Abessa and Takoum: The Family of Abigaia	137
5.5. Daniel Son of Pachom	141
5.6. The Family of Germanos	143
5.7. Monasteries	146
5.8. Scribe and Client Relationships	151
CHAPTER 6. Aristophanes' Personal and Professional Lives	156
6.1. Aristophanes' Personal Life	156
6.2. Aristophanes' Career	163
6.3. Aristophanes as Teacher	183
6.4. Anatomy of an Early Islamic Coptic Scribe	188
Appendixes
Appendix 1. Catalog of Aristophanes' Texts	195
A. Papyri	196
B. Ostraca	205
C. Papyri with Aristophanes as Amanuensis or Witness	231
Appendix 2. New Editions of Ostraca	235
A. Tax Receipts	235
B. Safe Conduct Pass	245
C. Name list	247
Appendix 3. Tax Receipt Information	251
A. Particulars (Arranged by Date)	251
B. Corrections to Published Texts	256
Bibliography	259
Indexes	277
Papyrological Index	277
General Index	285
Plates (following p. 192)	