

Contents

Acknowledgements	v
Preface	1
Part 1: Charles Masson and His Contemporaries
1. The Life of James Lewis / Charles Masson, 1800–53	3
2. The Discovery of Buddhist Sites in Afghanistan, 1824–79	15
3. From Kabul to London and Beyond: The Dispersal of the Masson Collection	22
Part 2: The Stupas and Relic Deposits
4. The Buddhist Landscape	28
5. The Relic Deposits	32
6. The Buddhist and Historical Context of the Finds	41
7. Sources of Raw Materials Suggested by the Published Literature	45
8. Analysis of the Materials Used for Small Finds from the Relic Deposits Louise Joyner and Ian Freestone	49
9. Stone Beads from the Relic Deposits: A Preliminary Morphological and Technological Analysis Margaret Sax, Wannaporn Kay Rienjang and Jonathan Mark Kenoyer	52
Part 3: Records of the Sites and Catalogue of the Relic Deposits
10. Bamiyan	59
11. Kabul Sites	66
12. Stupas South-east of Kabul: Shakh Baranta Ridge (Modern Monaray Ghar)	71
13. Sites in Koh-i Daman and Kohistan (between Kabul and Begram)	82
14. Darunta / Siah Koh Sites	85
15. Chahar Bagh Sites	141
16. Sites in the Jalalabad, Kunar and Safed Koh Regions	153
17. Hadda Sites	162
18. Wardak / Kohwat Sites	200
19. Finds without Site Provenance	212

Appendix 1 List of Standardized Spelling	215
Appendix 2 Records Relating to the South Kensington Museum 1880 India Museum Inventory	217
Appendix 3 Documentation of Bead Morphology, Manufacture and Use Wear Jonathan Mark Kenoyer	226
References	230
Index	238