

Contents

List of Contributors	vii
-----------------------------	-----

Introduction	1
--------------	---

Anna Bergqvist and Robert Cowan

Part I. The Existence and Nature of Evaluative Perception

1. Rich Perceptual Content and Aesthetic Properties	19
Dustin Stokes
2. Can We Visually Experience Aesthetic Properties?	42
Heather Logue
3. Moral Perception Defended	58
Robert Audi
4. Evaluative Perception as Response-Dependent Representation	80
Paul Noordhof
5. Doubts about Moral Perception	109
Pekka Väyrynen
6. Seeing Depicted Space (Or Not)	129
Mikael Pettersson
7. Perception of Absence as Value-Driven Perception	143
Anya Farennikova

Part II. The Epistemology of Evaluative Perception

8. Moral Perception and Its Rivals	161
Sarah McGrath
9. Perception and Intuition of Evaluative Properties	183
Jack C. Lyons
10. On the Epistemological Significance of Value Perception	200
Michael Milona
11. Epistemic Sentimentalism and Epistemic Reason-Responsiveness	219
Robert Cowan

Part III. Evaluative Perception and Value Theory

12. Value Perception, Properties, and the Primary Bearers of Value	239
Graham Oddie

13. Moral Perception, Thick Concepts, and Perspectivalism Anna Bergqvist	258
14. The Primacy of the Passions James Lenman	282
15. Sexual Objectification, Objectifying Images, and 'Mind-Insensitive Seeing-As' Kathleen Stock	295
Bibliography	311
Index	331