

CONTENTS

List of contributors	ix
1 Introduction Michelle Chihara and Matt Scybold	1
PART I
Critical traditions	13
2 What is literary knowledge of economy? Christopher Newfield	15
3 The politics of form and poetics of identity in postwar American poetry Christopher Chen and Timothy Kreiner	27
4 Rhetorical economics Mark Garrett Longaker	41
5 Labor without value, language at a price: toward a narrative poetics for the financial turn Richard Godden	50
PART II
Histories	65
6 Premodern economics: ideas, literature, and contexts Andrew Galloway	67

7	John Smith and the virus of trade Andrew Lawson	81
8	Gothic economies: capitalism and vampirism Lauren Bailey	89
9	The print revolution and paper money Mary McAleer Balkun	95
10	The economics of American literary realism Henry B. Wonham	104
11	Women's writing and the mainstreaming of political economy Lana L. Dalley	114
12	Modernism and macroeconomics Michael Tratner	123
13	American modernism and the crash of 1929 Paul Crosthwaite	133
14	Friedrich Hayek and the pleasures of liberal thought in the 'Great Book' of modern Japan Brian Hurley	144
15	Free trade masculinity and the literature of NAFTA Stephen M. Park	156
PART III
	Principles	167
16	Asymmetric information Andrew Kopec	169
17	Black markets Sharada Balachandran Orihuela	178
18	Classical economics Eleanor Courtemanche	188
19	Consumption: cultures of crisis, overproduction, and twenty-first-century literature Alden Sajor Marte-Wood	199

Contents

20	Corporate space Robbie Moore	210
21	Currency Kimberly Hall	219
22	Literature and energy Imre Szeman	227
23	Financialisation Christian P. Haines	240
24	Globalization: everything in chains; the aesthetics of global capitalism Kyle Wanberg	252
25	Inflation Joseph Jonghyun Jeon	262
26	Keynes and Keynesianism Matt Seybold	272
27	Neoclassical economics Regina Martin	285
28	Neoliberalism Alissa G. Karl	295
29	Real-estate confessions: moral realism in a risk economy Alison Shonkwiler	305
30	Reproduction Nicky Marsh	315
31	Secular stagnation and the discourse of reproductive limit Annie McClanahan	324
32	Social want Howard Horwitz	335
33	Speculation Peter Knight	346

PART IV
Contemporary culture	357
34 “The real home of capitalism”: the AOL Time Warner merger and capital flight Michael Szalay	359
35 Hamilton , credit, and the American enterprise Jennifer J. Baker	372
36 Global finance and scale: literary form and economics in Mohsin Hamid’s How to Get Filthy Rich in Rising Asia Laura Finch	382
37 Behavioral economics and genre Michelle Chihara	392
38 Serialization in the age of finance capitalism David Buxton	404
Index	413

CONTRIBUTORS

Lauren Bailey is a Ph.D. candidate in English at the City University of New York, Graduate Center. Her dissertation explores the crossover among the gothic, inheritance plot, and global economy of Victorian Britain by examining the disruptive force of foreign objects in nineteenth-century British literature. She has completed institutes and fellowships in Writing & Thinking at Bard College, Archival Research at the New-York Historical Society, and History of Political Economy at Duke University, and has received research awards and grants from her institution, the British Association for Victorian Studies, Rocky Mountain Modern Language Association, and the History of Economics Society.

Jennifer J. Baker is an Associate Professor of English at New York University, where she specializes in eighteenth- and nineteenth-century American literature and culture. She is the author of Securing the Commonwealth: Debt, Speculation, and Writing in the Making of Early America (Johns Hopkins, 2005) and the co-editor of a special issue of Early American Literature on "Economics and Early American Literature." She is currently at work on a book on American Romanticism and the life sciences.

Mary McAleer Balkun is a Professor of English at Seton Hall University. Her research interests include material culture and body studies in early America, and the American gothic and grotesque. She is the author of The American Counterfeit: Authenticity and Identity in American Literature and Culture (U. of Alabama, 2006), co-editor with Susan C. Imbarrato of Women of the Early Americas and the Formation of Empire (Palgrave, 2016), and associate editor of The Greenwood Encyclopedia of American Poets and Poetry: From the Colonial Era to the Present (2015) and The Greenwood Encyclopedia of American Poets and Poetry (2005). She is currently at work on New World Upside Down, a study of the early American grotesque.

David Buxton is a Professor at Université de Paris Nanterre, France, and the author of numerous books and articles on literature, cinema, television, and psychoanalysis.

Christopher Chen is an Assistant Professor of Literature at the University of California at Santa Cruz, and a 2016–17 Institute for Humanities Research Fellow. Chen has published articles, poetry, interviews, and reviews in boundary 2, South Atlantic Quarterly, The Los Angeles